Committee Approves Fortas' Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Abe Fortas' nomination to the chief justice won the approval of the Senate Judiciary Committee today, but still faced serious trouble in the Senate itself.

The committee vote was 11 to 6.

The battleground now shifts to the Senate, where a filibuster is threatened against confirming the nomination.

The outcome is in doubt. It takes a two-thirds majority of senators voting to choke off a filibuster by putting a debate-limiting closure rule into effect.

D-Mass.; Birch Bayh, D-Ind.; V. Long, D-Mo., who later was Quentin Burdick, D-N.D.; Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md.; Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill.; Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb.; and Hugh Scott, R-Pa.

Voting against were Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., and Sens. John L. McClellan, D-Ark.; Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C.; Hiram L. Fong, R-Hawaii; Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.; and Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn.

The only absent member of the committee was Sen. Edward

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield told the Senate Monday that if Fortas is not confirmed, Warren probably will stay on as chief justice "for a long time to come."

Warren has made his retirement contingent upon Fortas' confirmation.

The controversy over Fortas' rulings on pornography cases prompted the introduction of legislation Monday to bar the Supreme Court from overturning jury findings of obscenity.

Opponents, who include Republicans and Southern Democrats, claim they have the votes to keep the debate going and perhaps enough to defeat the nomination outright, which would require only a simple majority.

Fortas, an associate justice on the Supreme Court, was nominated by President Johnson June 26 to succeed Earl Warren as chief justice. Johnson accepted Warren's retirement effective on the confirmation of a successor.

The motion in committee to report Fortas' nomination favorably to the Senate was made by Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla.

Voting for it, in addition to Smathers, were Sens. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn.; Philip A. Hart, D-Mich.; Edward M. Kennedy,

City Accepts Bartholomew For Neighborhood Analyses

City Manager W. Raymer Miller wrote a letter to Harland Bartholomew and Associates in St. Louis last Tuesday accepting their proposal to do neighborhood analyses for the City of Sikeston.

The neighborhood analyses is a survey of all houses and existing buildings in the town. Each structure is rated according to the soundness of the structure. Maps are prepared showing exactly where the houses are, and what condition they are in.

The St. Louis consulting firm estimated in a proposal and scope of service read at the last regular city council meeting that it would require about six months to complete the study at an estimated cost of $7,200, of which the city would be obligated to pay $2,400 or one third.

The remainder of the bill is to be paid with federal funds.

The neighborhood analysis is needed for recertification of the city's workable program.

The workable program is the city's overall plan for the removal and prevention of blight. Five of the program's seven elements were verbally approved when submitted recently in Ft. Worth, Tex., the regional office of the Housing and Urban Development office.

Corrections in the codes and not available.

ordinances element have been made and a letter stating that the city has contracted for a neighborhood analyses has been sent to the Ft. Worth office.

The letter and the corrections should be enough to receive recertification of the workable program this year, Bob Henzi, director of public works said.

The elements of the workable program must be reviewed each year for recertification.

If the city is recertified this year, it will be eligible for various federal assistance programs, such as urban renewal and rent supplement housing. Other things are required for the city to initiate either program, at but without recertification of the workable program the federal government funds are not available.

Marshall Craig overruled a motion to vacate judgment and sentence following a hearing on the motion filed by attorneys representing Joe Lester Slayton, 26, Chaffee, Monday in circuit court.

Slayton is serving the remainder of a 15-year penitentiary term imposed in 1958 when he was found guilty of a rape charge.

The hearing revived memories of a brutal slaying of a former Charleston athlete, John A. Malugen. Malugen and his girl friend were parking on the night of Jan. 5, 1957, when two masked men interrupted. Malugen was shot to death and his girl friend was dragged into a cotton field and raped. Slayton was convicted of raping Malugen's girl friend.

Jefferson City (AP) — An industrial development plan that has been under discussion for more than 10 years appeared close to achievement in Poplar Bluff today.

The Rowe Furniture Co. of Salem, Va., said it would establish a branch plant in Poplar Bluff.

Still necessary, however, is approval by the state division of commerce and industrial development of a $2 million bond issue. Then if it is later approved by the city's voters the plant can be built to provide 130,000 square feet of production space.

The plant will employ an estimated 300 workers and provide an annual payroll of about $1.5 million.

News Briefs Marine Column Hit Hard

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops caught a column of U. S. Marines as the Leathernecks were digging in for the night Monday, killed 25 and wounded 126 with more than 200 mortar rounds and a hail of small arms fire.

The Americans struck back with mortars, artillery and helicopter gunships. The Marines reported 27 of the enemy killed in the 10-hour fight four miles south of the central part of the demilitarized zone.

The Marines were from the 26th Regiment, the defenders of Khe Sanh who held out against a 77-day Communist siege last winter, and then abandoned that outpost. The casualties Monday were comparable to those on the worst days of Khe Sanh.

The first North Vietnamese barrage pounded in at 3:30 p.m. just as the Marines were moving into defensive positions for the night, one of the most vulnerable spots troops can be in. The Marines apparently were caught before they could get their foxholes dug.

Nuclear Treaty Advances

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee today approved a treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons and sent it to the floor for action.

The vote was 13-3, with three abstentions.

The majority overrode objections of members who urged delay because of the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Acting Chairman John Sparkman, D-Ala., said he hoped the Senate would act during the current session of Congress on the nonproliferation treaty. No date has been set for a Senate vote.

A two-thirds vote will be needed to give Senate consent to the treaty under terms of the Constitution.

The heavy endorsement in the committee came after weeks of uncertainty over whether the treaty would reach the floor in view of the Czech crisis and concern about other Soviet intentions.

Johnson Raps Price Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson condemned Chrysler Corp.'s boost in 1969 model car prices today, saying it would take $750 million from pockets of American families buying new cars if it spreads throughout the industry.

"This," Johnson said in a statement, "is an onerous and unfair burden on the consumer. The Cabinet Committee on Price Stability has informed me that there is absolutely no excuse for the Chrysler action and that this price increase should not stand."

Chrysler announced Monday it is raising prices on new models an average of $89 a car, or 2.9 per cent. Johnson called this excessive, as did Arthur M. Okun, chairman of his price stability committee.

Okun also is chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Johnson said the Chrysler action, represents a sharp blow to the national battle against economic inflation. He called on car makers to recognize the public interest and "exercise restraint and responsibility at this critical hour" in the battle against inflation.

He justified his appeal on grounds that no major industry has benefited more from prosperity in recent years and none has "a greater stake in protecting that prosperity."

Facets of Rotary Explained

The Sikeston Rotarians dined with their Rotary Anna last night at their annual Governor's Banquet.

Felix Snider, governor of District 609, told the Rotarians about Rotary International on a world basis. Snider said, "In Ceylon a Rotary Club of 34 members represented seven religions. The Rotary meeting is the only place where they can meet as friends and discuss what they like."

They wouldn't discuss each other's religion or politics outside the Rotary Club for fear of causing misunderstanding between their own people, he said.

Rotary Volunteers Abroad is a world project where a Rotarian and his Ann spends four to six months helping an underdeveloped country with its certain skills. Snider said that he hopes to be able to go overseas and help with this project in a couple of years.

After the governor's talk the Rotary Club gave a report on several projects for the coming year. On Rotary foundation, sargeant at arms Pat E. Jones told the club fines would be 10 cents for being late, 25 cents for being absent, 25 cents for not wearing name button. Two recommended fines would be $1 paid by each member at the meeting following his birthday, anniversary, and $1 be paid by each member upon the arrival of a child and or grandchild. This money would be used to give to the Rotary foundation treasury.

Jones said, "Sikeston Rotary members who fail to bring an item of canned goods on the first meeting night in each month will be charged 25 cents. This money will be used to buy meat and groceries for needy families in the area, at times such as in the loss of a dwelling or at Christmas time. In conjunction with this, the canned goods collected will be distributed to the same individuals in need."

Report on the Rotary Magazine was given by Chip Schmerbauch. He told the club that besides the membership receiving the magazine, copies were being sent to the Chamber of Commerce, Missouri Delta Community Hospital, Sikeston Public Library, high school library and the Spanish teacher who receives the Spanish version of the magazine.

Paul Hill's report on world community service was that the club's intention is to collect from each member one book representative of our professions or our country and forward them to a matched district club overseas.

Max Chandler reported on matched district and club program. He said, "Our matched districts are no. 275, Australia, and no. 325, Burma-India - Nepal. District 275 has requested tapes, manuscripts or color slides. In this area the club plans on taping significant programs or speakers and forwarding to them."

District 325 has indicated a desire for publications. To first meeting night in each month will forward publications, periodicals representative of our businesses to them."

International youth was reported on by Allen Blanton, who said, "We expect in this area to arrange for foreign students who are enrolled at Southeast Missouri State to speak at our meetings."

Melvin McMackins, president, gave a short summary of the reports and dismissed the meeting.

Temporary Power Failures

Electricity customers of the Sikeston Light & Water Co. in the south end of town were without power for more than an hour early today.

Other outages occurred on a more temporary basis in the downtown area and the Midtowner Village Shopping Center.

Customers along Murray Lane, Ables Road and adjoining streets were without power between 4 a.m. and 5 a.m.

The south feeder line fuses had been struck by lightning, E. R. Inman, director said.

The Sikeston police department reported that all power at the station went off at 3:30 a.m. and returned at 3:43 a.m. It went off again at 3:47 a.m. and returned at 3:53 a.m.

Missouri Utilities and REA Electrical Co-op each reported having no trouble last night.

City Manager W. Raymer Miller said the city only received a few complaints regarding fallen limbs.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS:

Our columnist Victor Riesel, putting in some energetic legwork and abandoning the pack for personal coverage across thousands of miles, once again has come in ahead with stories on two major political developments.

Today, George Wallace's inroads on the labor vote crops up in stories being filed from scores of cities. Victor Riesel wrapped all this up weeks ago, after a long talk with the American Independent Party's candidate himself.

Riesel, in a two-part series dispatched on August 19 and 20, gave full specifics, detailed the unions, reported the documents behind this phenomenon.

Today, more than three weeks later, this is being so widely reported, and is of such sharp concern to labor that union chiefs everywhere are launching a counter-offensive.

And, Victor Riesel was days ahead on the behind-the-scenes story of the Mobilizers and Resisters invasion of Chicago. On Friday, August 30, Riesel filed a story disclosing documented evidence of demonstrators' plans mademonths ago for the baiting and attacks on the Chicago police. Riesel reported the full force of the police counterattacks. But his was the first inside story of the Mobilizers' assault on law and order. All this has been corroborated in the past few days.

HARRY F. BYRD

The Berryville, Va., apple-grower, former governor of Virginia and U.S. Senator from Virginia, 1933-1965, is dead of cancer. He had been in a coma since early July. A few remembrances of an honest, God-fearing champion of liberty who fully understood the story of the prodigal son.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, the Virginia Statesman, did a lot for Virginia and even more for all Americans. He left us a rich legacy of knowledge - but we are his prodigal children.

How much the heirs of this knowledge owe him will be totalled only by time - that commodity that Byrd used so well to fight wastrels whom he believed were squandering the toil and earnings of taxpayers.

Senator Byrd was called an aristocrat, but his cause was the cause of the little man who would suffer most the hell and damnation of a 30-year fiscal binge of deficit spending and dollar erosion.

Moderation - that was his fiscal sermon as he attacked the legions of Keynesian, deficit-spending economists. A Democrat, he supported Franklin Delano Roosevelt's platform in 1932, as advertised - moderation in federal spending - then fought him when in federal spending - then fought him when ("Keynes got hold of him") and as he saw the platform as a raw deal of tax, spend and elect. Byrd voted against the NRA and TVA and Roosevelt's attempt to "pack" the Supreme Court. The die was cast and Byrd would fight the spenders the rest of his life.

Democrat Byrd was at odds with ("He's just another spender") Truman ("There are too many Byrds in Congress"). Ike was surely marked for a ferocious Byrd attack when he ran up that $12 billion budget deficit in 1959. John F. Kennedy wanted to spend, too, but there was Chairman Harry Byrd of the Senate Finance Committee, a practicin' and a preachin' fiscal restraint as head of the Senate Finance Committee. Kennedy's legislative end-run attempts around Byrd's committee were tough football, but Chairman Byrd was playing tackle. One such effort involved medicare which died in the committee operating room.

Said Byrd of JFK: "He has ability, no doubt about it." Of Byrd, JFK said respectfully: "Most gracious person you'd want to meet, but he gives us fits."

Byrd's fit-giving nature in saving the taxpayer's money came naturally if one believes frugal genes can hold out for 1145 years - the span between Byrd's birth in 1887 back to 742, the birth of a Byrd ancestor, Charlemagne. Both were champions of economy. And like Charlemagne who ruled all of France and a sizeable slice of what is now both Germanies, Byrd built a political empire - in Virginia. Both were likeable sorts who wore simple clothes (both were fond of white linen), and each suffered a bad limp. Charlemagne was a victim of fevers which caused him to hobble, and Byrd's arthritis was so painful he favored his left leg. He waved off all thoughts of a knee operation that would end the pain, whipping it with sheer will. He climbed his beloved Virginia mountains, Old Rag, Hawk's Bill, Naked Top, and took brisk walks along Rock Creek, a cool, green, serpentine park in the District of Columbia.

Harry Byrd built up his left knee with so much muscle his knees looked mismatched. The arthritis came after a fall on one of those many walks, and it finally caused him to retire from the Senate last November. His son was named to replace him.

Likely, the real reason Byrd was so careful with the taxpayer's buck was his hatred of debt. Virginia's taxpayers had suffered too long paying off $45 million in pre-Civil War debt, and when he became governor, he put the Old Dominion on a "get-now, pay-now" basis. The pre-Byrd administration had a $1.3 million budget deficit, but when Byrd left the state house in 1930, Virginia had $4.2 million in the bank. As he built up the state, he was constructing what became known as The Organization - Byrd's political machine that has ruled the state since. The recent primary tossed out two Byrd men (Sen. Robertson and Rep. Smith, Chairman of the House Rules Committee) but nominated Harry F. Byrd, Jr., to keep the machine going. Some say it is sputtering of old age, but the Byrds who settled Virginia in 1670 (William Byrd I), and served as a Captain in Washington's Army (Thomas T.), and lead Confederate troops (Col. William) in the Civil War, and explored the Antarctic (Adm. Richard E., Harry's brother) have conquered more formidable adversaries than so-called winds of change.

Big government and the cost of it were subjects that sent Byrd into flights of economic discourse. The growing number of federal employees - a sign of representative government giving way to bureaucracy - was a constant irritation. And it was Senator Byrd who told the taxpayers in 1962 that the national debt wasn't $290 billion. The national obligation, meaning all costs that will eventually have to be paid, he said was $1.250 trillion - or $298 billion quadrupled, with $58 billion left over in the debit column.

It was this awareness of fiscal insanity that led Byrd to become the nation's fiscal conscience - indeed, its economic psychiatrist. He wanted the people to know he and the nation were going. In 1941, he wrote an amendment to the Revenue Act of that year which, when adopted, set up the Joint Committee on the Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures. Among other things, it reports the monthly cost and number of federal employees. Rarely have either shown a decrease. LIFE LINES features the report regularly - the last one showing a two-year increase in Executive Branch personnel of 299,345 from August 1964 to August 1966. The monthly payroll in almost the same period increased $159,242,000, from $1,430,729,000 to $1,589,971,000.

Freshman Senator Hubert Humphrey is said to have termed Byrd's Federal Expenditures committee an example of waste and extravagance. Byrd took up an hour of Senate debate to blister the freshman from Minnesota. Humphrey later said the remark was "the worst mistake I ever made."

Is deficit spending, playing fast and loose with the dollar, the worst mistake the U.S. ever made?

Time will tell, but mercifully Harry F. Byrd was spared that day of reckoning.

THE DAYS OF AUTUMN

It always seems that summer has barely started when someone smells "fall in the air." Many people hate to see the leaves begin to turn. But, if they will look around them when fall is in "full bloom", they will find that they are in the midst of one of the most pleasant seasons of the year. While there is a tang in the air, there is also a new freshness. Crisp mornings and falling leaves tell us winter is coming. We will look to such things as winterizing and tidying up the premises. It is time to think about snow tires for the car and make sure a supply of antifreeze is standing handy.

Those who live in the southland may not need to take all these precautions, but the coming of fall for them means that shortly the winter vacation season starts. In many southern communities, visitors will arrive in droves, and it is time to prepare for them. All in all, the passing of the seasons adds zest to life. Autumn begins this year on September 23, so those who have been smelling fall in the air will be vindicated on that day. Autumn marks the beginning of the challenging and busy days of the fall season.

The issue of 14(b) is one of transcendent importance. This is not partisan and political, this is a fight over a fundamental American freedom—the right of free choice.

—U.S. Senate Minority Leader EVERETT M. DIRKSEN, Illinois

Representative M. Gene Snyder of Kentucky states, "I believe that government involvement in business and big centralized government can well be the ruin of our free enterprise system and our country. As the federal government acquires more and more power, they are inclined to exercise it. Once all of the power is centralized, we will have lost our American way of life."

Following too closely continues to be a frequent contributing cause of traffic accidents in Missouri. Records of the Missouri Highway Patrol show that during the first six months of the year, 2,193 violations of following another vehicle too closely were indicated in traffic accidents investigated by the Patrol.

State law requires that the driver of a vehicle shall not follow another vehicle more closely than is reasonably safe and prudent, having due regard for the speed of such vehicle and the traffic upon and the condition of the roadway.

Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, pointed out that many items need to be considered in determining the safe distance at which one car may follow another. He noted that the driver's attention and reaction time, the speed of the car, the condition of the vehicle's brakes and tires, type of roadway and the weather affect the distance required to stop a car if the need arises.

"The driver's attention and his reaction time determine how soon the brakes can be applied after an emergency arises," Hockaday said. "All other conditions determine how soon the car can be stopped after the brakes are applied."

"The speed of a car affects the amount of following distance needed for safety more constantly than any other factor," he continued. "As vehicle speed is increased, the distance for safe stopping is greatly increased. For example, under ideal conditions the total stopping distance for a vehicle traveling 40 miles per hour is 149 feet. At 170 miles per hour the total stopping distance is increased to 532 feet. These stopping distances assume it takes the driver three-quarters of a second to begin braking and that the brakes are in good condition. Lower reaction time on the part of the driver or faulty brakes will further decrease the margin of safety."

"Dad, what's the difference between a gun and a machine gun?"
"Well, son," the father replied, "There's a difference. It's just like I spoke and then your mother spoke."

We've finally found out why the country is in such a financial mess today. It's all Herbert Hoover's fault.

As president, he turned his salary over to the government—and they've been trying to get the rest of us to do the same thing ever since.

A Broadway bookie was given a parrot in lieu of cash payment. The bird's vocabulary included choice phrases in English, French, Spanish and German. Sensing a winner, the bookie hauled the bird off to his favorite bar.

"Speaks four languages," he said to the bartender, who snorted in disbelief. "Wanna bet this bird can speak four languages?" the bookie challenged.

Annoyed, the bartender finally agreed to a ten-dollar wager. The bookie turned to the parrot and said, "Parlez-vous francais?" There was no response.

Nor was there any reply to the question in English, Spanish or German. The bartender picked up the bookie's awbuck from the bar and went about his business.

On the street, the bookie glared at the bird. "You fink!" he exclaimed. "I've got ten bucks riding on you and you clam up on me. I oughta strangle you!"

"Don't be a jerk," the parrot replied. "Just think of the odds you'll get tomorrow."

H.L. Hunt Says

THE DEPRIVED

In a Christian nation such as ours concern for the deprived is proper and expected. Indeed, it is the history of our people that concern for the deprived has prompted generosity admired by the entire civilized world.

Within our own borders, however, concern for the deprived has waned. And the deprived are grievously in need. Federal funds and projects have not been enough.

Appropriations and budgeted bounties have not done the job. There have been commissions and authorities. Experts have been empaneled. Yet the plight of the deprived in our country grows worse, not better.

Who are these deprived? The woman whose purse is snatched from her hand in the street.

The merchant whose cash register is emptied while he is held at bay.

The teenage daughter of a neighbor who is deprived of her virginity, by force.

The homeowner who returns to a house from which the TV, the radio, the silverware and the piggy-bank have been stolen.

The taxpayer whose family automobile has been stolen.

The jobholder who has had a knife or a gun jammed into his ribs a block from home, and returned to find the house ransacked and the furniture stripped of even the furniture.

These are the deprived in our land. The really deprived. They outnumber the deadbeats on welfare, the poverty program spongers and the black-power marches by ten to one.

Our police have been cowed into docility toward those who deprive us. Our courts have pampered those who deprive us. Our politicians have been nauseating in their pandering to pressures—and votes.

We are the deprived—we who pay the taxes, we who suffer pain and loss of property and even life.

And the time has come to tell the judges, the police, the politicians, and Washington, that you don't aim to be deprived any longer.

If you are one of the deprived, start making noises. Loud. You'll be heard.

STUDY OF SCHOLARSHIPS

The Rhodes scholarships, "grand-daddy" of the international indoctrination programs paid for out of Cecil Rhodes' diamond and mining fortune, and the Fulbright programs, paid for by the U.S. taxpayer, should be studied and evaluated. Considerable effort has been made to hide their real intent, and those in Congress and the news media have felt the pressures resulting in any disclosures of the subject, which has not been publicly aired since 1955.

This cunning effort to destroy our Republic should be exposed and considered by all citizens. The first class of Rhodes scholars entered Oxford in 1903, with six students from South Africa and five Germans, selected by Kaiser Wilhelm as stipulated in Rhodes' will before his death in 1902. In 1904 the 72 Rhodes scholars included 43 Americans.

Rhodes left his plans in a series of wills, in which he expressed his intent to destroy society as it then existed and replace it with a centralized, non-representative world government ruled from Britain.

He thought it might take up to 100 years to fulfill his idea and Rhodes scholars and others drawn into this scheme have now been working on his plan for more than 60 years.

Rhodes is said to have thought of his first scholars as his "grandchildren" but Senator James William Fulbright, Rhodes scholar 1925-28, who instigated the U.S. taxpayer-financystem, took that title for his own, saying, "The recipients of these (Fulbright) awards may be considered as the grandchildren of Cecil Rhodes," scattered throughout the world."

About 135 nations were participants in some phase of the Fulbright programs in 1968 when 5,840 academic grants were awarded. Average grants run about $2,500 but go as high as $16,000. Counting administrative overhead, it cost U.S. taxpayers $5,300 per student in 1968. U.S. citizens should make a study of these scholarship plans designed to destroy Republic USA. HLH

Mailbag Bulletin: "I've Tired of Elm Leaves, Mother, Pam Me Some More Sludge"

BY HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) - Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

We may see some changes in the world's menu in the future. A machine has been developed in India to make edible protein from tree leaves, and a scientist at Texas A&M University says the addition of bacteria to water-polluting industrial sludge could produce nourishing food.

The risk of giving birth to a mongoloid baby tends to rise with the age of the mother. An English physician believes, therefore that mongolism was rarer in the human past than now for a very simple reason: 200 years ago nearly half the women died before their 35th birthday.

The ritual of the Saturday night bath is still commonplace in many American families. Checks of water use patterns in a number of communities showed a rise in consumption on the Sabbath eve.

Here's a bit of bad news for teen-age athletes: The fall football season increases the acne problems of players, report dermatologists at the University of Michigan Medical Center.

Dirty, grime and sweaty uniforms have been found to aggravate this condition. Most athletes, however, would rather play now and whip the acne later—and the doctors agree.

Quotable notables: "The first thing to do in life is to do with purpose what one proposes to do."—Pablo Casals, noted cellist.

Pity the poor mail. Some have up to 80,000 teeth—and no dentists.

Inflation note: Even the cost of a good chuckle is going up. The New Yorker magazine is raising its newstand price to 50 cents.

Opportunity: If your daughter is good in math and economics, why not point her toward a career as an actuary? Only 55 of the 1,100 members of the American Society of Actuaries are women. They earn about $15,000 a year.

Wasp and bee stings kill more people each year in the United States than snake bites. Death can occur within minutes. But if you are extremely allergic to these forms of insect venom you can now protect yourself by being treated in advance with diluted venom in graduated doses.

If muscles don't make up approximately half of your body weight, better go on a diet. You're too fat for your own good.

Signs of our times: "One New York publishing firm has this slogan lettered on the back of its trucks: "On the Left, Pass; On the Right, Flunk."

The Civil War, which saw so many military innovations, also produced America's first improvised aircraft carrier. It was the G. W. Parke Curtis, a coal barge remodeled by the Federal forces so it could carry an observation balloon that spied on Confederate positions along the Potomac River.

Worth remembering: "Nature has given to men one tongue, two ears, so that we may hear twice as much as we speak."

Ten million Americans now wear contact lenses, and their number increases about 15 percent a year. About 90 percent choose them chiefly for appearance's sake, only 10 percent because they function better than glasses. But specialists say the contact lenses should be replaced by ordinary glasses part of the day to guard against damage to the cornea.

Knowledge suggests: the dog may be man's best friend, but pet dealers report that more men than women now buy cats.

Burglary is the most common felony in the United States—one occurs every 77 seconds. The average car burns its weight in gasoline each year. Sir Winston Churchill, more noted for his wit than his superstitions, customarily refused to travel on Friday the 13th.

It was Goethe who wryly observed, "After 15 minutes nobody looks at a rainbow."

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Kremlin had LBJ's advance assurance of non-intervention; Russians outsmarted U.S. military intelligence; muskie integrity influences Democratic reforms.

WASHINGTON -- The facts have been swept under a secrecy label, but President Johnson gave the Kremlin advance assurance that the U.S. would not interfere with any Soviet action against Czechoslovakia.

The President's purpose, ironically, was to forestall a Soviet move into Czechoslovakia by making clear that the U.S. had no military or political designs on the country.

The question came up when the liberal Dubcek government sounded out the U.S. about economic aid. Cautious word was sent back that the U.S. would consider providing financial help, but that this would not imply political or military support.

To allay Soviet suspicions over our dealings with Czechoslovakia, President Johnson relayed to the Kremlin the gist of what the U.S. had told the Dubcek government. In light of the subsequent Soviet invasion, this may have encouraged the Russians to believe they could move into Czechoslovakia without risk.

The invasion, incidentally, caught American military intelligence completely by surprise—despite an elaborate network of electronic listening devices which are supposed to monitor Soviet military moves.

The Pentagon was aware, of course, that Russia had several divisions poised on the Czech border. The Russian military maneuvers had been kept under close surveillance.

But an estimated 330,000 troops, complete with tanks and planes, managed to slip into Czechoslovakia without immediate detection by the massive electronic monitoring equipment. The first word of the invasion came from an informant inside the Czech government and reached the White House scarcely two hours before the official Soviet notice.

The Pentagon was also shocked over the use of satellite troops in the invasion. It had been assumed that the Russians considered satellite soldiers too unreliable to use for anything except logistical support. Yet Poles, Hungarians, Bulgarians and East Germans participated in an invasion of a sister satellite with no apparent hesitation.

The whole Soviet operation has caused some agonizing reappraisals inside the Pentagon.

CAMPAIGN STANDARDS
This column has found much to criticize in the conduct of congress. It is only fair, therefore, to report changes for the better.

In the past, the Democratic senatorial campaign committee has accepted campaign cash under the table from special interests seeking to influence legislation.

Bagmen for the oil companies, for instance, would slip money to the committee with instructions that it be passed out to senators who had agreed to vote for the oil depletion allowance. The records of contributions were deliberately vague.

These practices were abruptly abandoned after Maine's egregiously rich Sen. Ed Muskie took over the chairmanship. He talked it over with Democratic senators up for reelection, who agreed to take the high road in their campaigns.

He asked Washington Attorney Berl Bernhard, who has a strong sense of the law. Then Muskie laid down stern ethical standards.

He insisted that every contribution must be identified and that every transaction must be made by check. He made certain even that the interest on the $650,000 which the committee had in the bank was properly recorded. He asked Bernhard whether the interest was taxable.

Back came a memo from the attorney assuring him: "Since it is the campaigns and related purposes, rendering the contribution non-taxable, income in the form of interest from these gifts, if applied for campaign purposes, can be considered non-taxable."

Muskie also sought advice on how to handle contributors who insisted that their money be earmarked for their favorite senators.

"Each contributor," suggested Bernhard, "should be asked to accept that the committee recognizes the donor's preference, but is under no obligation to disburse the funds as requested."

This became the rule, and it was soon put to the test. The AFL-CIO submitted, along with a generous contribution, a list of eight senators who should get the money. Muskie amiably refused to give any guarantee.

Another time, the senators seeking reelection decided to spend a quiet weekend on Maryland's Eastern shore mapping strategy. Someone offered to get a corporation to fly them to the shore in a private plane. Muskie flatly rejected the idea, and they all paid their own expenses.

He also decreed that contrary to past practices, each incumbent will get an equal share of the campaign kitty.

It was Muskie's equal reputation for integrity, as much as anything else, that made him choice president Humphrey's vice for a running mate.

TOUGHER FRANCO
Those who thought Spain's Dictator Franco was mellowing in his old age will have to revise their opinions.

He has reactivated the old suppression law, which gives him the power to impose the death penalty for any kind of political activity against him. His police have already arrested dissident priests in the Basque region.

However, they are being sentenced to prison, not executed.

Kegler's Korner

By MARY MEYER
We were not aware that the Newcomer's League had started, until finding the past two weeks results in the envelope at the bowling lanes. Our apologies; and herewith are the results for the past two weeks, beginning with, Tuesday, Sept. 3.

Pat Happe had both high individual game and series with scores of 154-444. The Percolaters had high team game - 760; and also high team series, a 3220.

The Sparettes and the Peanut split 2-2; the Percolaters won 3-1 over the Go-Getters; and the Gutter-Dusters won 3-1 over the Hi-Los.

Results for Sept. 10:
Linda Pool had both high individual game and series with scores of 202-460. The Go-Getters had the high team game with 823; and the Gutter-Dusters had the high team series with a 2290.

An added note of interest regarding the high game bowled in this league, last week. As is mentioned above, Linda Pool rolled a 202 and has an average of 111. We would say that congratulations are definitely in order, and wish her many more similar high games.

Donna Kyle picked up the 5-10 split and Erma Braswell, the 5-8-10.

The Percolaters defeated the Hi-Los 3-1; the Gutter-Dusters blanked the Sparettes 4-0; and also, the Go-Getters 4-0 over the Peanut.

On the Tuesday night league, the Delta Imperiaettes, Norma Baker had both high individual game and series with 199-524. Ziegler Superette collected both high team game and series with a 741-2210.

Mildred Chartreau picked up the 3-10 split; Dorothy Templeton the 6-7-10; Harryette Campbell the 3-10 and Doris Brown, the 5-6. These were the only reported splits and oddly enough, all of these bowlers are on the same team.

Lee's Auto Sales rolled over Imperial Lanes Restaurant 4-0; Barkett's Big Star split 2-2 with Security National Bank; Ferrell's Rental Equipment 3½ to Michelob's ¼; and Ziegler's Superette blanked Reiss Dairy 4-0.

With the Friday Bowlettes, Patty Grabb had both high individual game and series with a 203-530.

Rodgers Auto Sales had high team game - 1012 and Nowell Construction had high team series with a 2978.

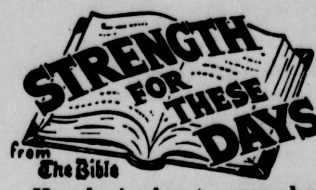

Ruby Andros rolled an all spare game of 182. This is a very difficult thing to do; so difficult, in fact, that Women's International Bowling Congress awards a patch to any woman bowler who achieves this. Our congratulations, Ruby.

Splits picked up: Mary Johnson, the 5-7 and Billie Waldron, the 5-7-9.

In team action:
Rodgers Auto Sales 3-1 over Medical Arts; Nowell Construction 4-0 over Anchor Toy; likewise, International Shoe No. 1 4-0 over Canvas products; L & A Laundry 4-0 over Int'l. Shoe No. 2; and, we have to be repetitious, Beardsley Chevrolet 4-0 over Hart's Bakery, and finally, a local radio station 4-0 over Sikeston Piano.

No report from the Wednesday night league this week. Perhaps we will be able to get it in next week.

He who is slow to anger has great understanding.

—(Prov. 14:29).
Perhaps the most important spiritual quality that should be expressed toward life is the love of God. When we are aware of His love and make a sincere effort to pour forth this love to all persons and all situations, we have the sure cure for any problem. Let us build in a feeling of God's love as we walk through our days to meet only love and understanding.

"THE PACE SETTER BANK"

94-Yard Runback, Tight Ram Defense Stop Big Red

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ron Smith came to the Los Angeles Rams about the same way he went through the St. Louis Cardinals' defense—long and roundabout.

Both trips paid off handsomely as Smith's 94-yard kickoff return sparked them to a 24-13 victory over the Cardinals Monday night in a National Football League game.

The Rams' head coach George Allen, sipped milk and outlined Smith's journey to the club.

"We actually got him for big Ben Wilson," Allen explained. "You remember big Ben? He traded Wilson to Vince Lombardi (Green Bay Packers general manager) and he gave me a second round draft choice. We turned around and gave that to Atlanta for Smith, who is a proven ball player. I remembered him because I signed him for the (Chicago) Bears in 1965 before he went to Atlanta."

So the fourth-year man from Wisconsin repaid Allen with the touchdown run to open the second half and pushed the Rams into a 17-3 lead.

"Any time I get the ball," the freckle-faced Smith said, "I know I can go all the way. It was a squib kick and I knew I would have to do a lot of maneuvering. I don't think I was even touched. They told me on the bench I stiff-armed (Jim) Bakken and he blocked out another guy."

"I thought the turning point was the kickoff return," Allen was saying. "That was the big play because the score was 10-3 at the time."

Free safety Ed Meador earlier supplied a couple of other turning points as he intercepted two Jim Hart passes. One set up the Rams' first touchdown and the second killed a Cardinal scoring drive.

Hart fired a third-down pass from his 25 for tight end Jackie Smith with about six minutes left in the first period. Meador picked it off and three plays later Roman Gabriel bootlegged around right end for a 7-0 lead.

The Cardinals managed a drive midway through the second quarter and settled for a Bakken field goal. The Rams got that back quickly on a Bruce Gossett field goal. Then with 18 seconds left in the half and the Cards threatening from the Rams' 25, Meador collared his second interception.

The Rams handed out three game balls, but Meador failed to get one. They went to Smith, to defensive halfback Irv Cross, and to defensive lineman Lamar Lundy.

Cross got his for stopping end Dave Williams throughout the game. Allen said that was a key. The Rams figured they had to stop Williams.

Lundy got his for batting down four Hart passes. And if Lundy didn't knock down the ball, the defensive line knocked down Hart. When Hart did have time to throw, he seldom had anyone open.

Hart completed 17 of 40 passes but only one series led to a touchdown. That came in the fourth quarter when the Rams had already scored all their points.

Hart said the Rams' Fearsome Foursome might better be called the "Tallsome Foursome."

And Hart didn't think the Rams' "Stop Williams" strategy had that much to do with the outcome.

Houston, Georgia Crash Into Elite Football Ranks

Houston and Georgia cracked into the rankings as a weekend of only limited warfare produced a thorough shakeup in The Associated Press' major college football poll.

The top three—Purdue, Southern California and Notre Dame—were about the only teams to escape the madcap shuffle from the preseason rankings.

Purdue attracted 14 of the 30 first-place votes and 584 points, while Southern Cal had eight and 536 and Notre Dame two and 488.

Houston, unmentioned in the preseason poll, leaped all the way to 11th after humiliating Tulane 54-7, and Georgia took over the No. 18 spot after a 17-17 tie with Tennessee that dropped the Vols from ninth to 12th.

Nebraska, only other ranked team in action over the weekend, remained 14th after a 13-10 last-minute victory over Wyoming.

Texas moved up a spot to fourth, trading place with Oklahoma, while Florida climbed a notch to sixth and Alabama moved from 10th to seventh.

Oregon State dropped from sixth to eighth, Ohio State moved from 11th to ninth and Penn State fell two spots to 10th to round out the top 10.

Texas A&M slipped from 12th to 13th, Indiana from 13th to 15th, Minnesota from 15th into a tie with UCLA for 16th, Miami jumped from 20th to 19th and Louisiana State, dropped from 18th to 20th.

Arizona State, 17th in the preseason poll, and Syracuse, 19th, vanished from the ratings although neither has played a game yet.

Birds to Have Say In Runner-up Battle Two Umps Blame Firing On Efforts to Form Union

The St. Louis Cardinals may be building a National League dynasty but it looks more like a dictatorship.

Not content with having run away with their second straight pennant, the Cards are about to have their say in determining the rest of the standings, as well.

They move into San Francisco tonight for a three-game series with the runner-up Giants, who lead third-place Cincinnati by two games after Monday's 5-4 victory over the Reds. Chicago is 3 1/2 games behind the Giants and Atlanta is five back.

Then it's on to Los Angeles for three with the Dodgers, who are battling Houston and New York for eighth place. After that it's back home for two games with seventh-place Philadelphia, which is trying to catch Pittsburgh, and three with Houston.

In Monday night action, Los Angeles tripped Atlanta 6-0 and Pittsburgh trounced Philadelphia 6-1. St. Louis, Chicago, Houston and New York were not scheduled.

In the American League, Detroit clinched a tie for the pennant by routing the New York Yankees 9-1, Baltimore clobbered Boston 8-1 and Minnesota edged California 4-3. Cleveland, Oakland, the Chicago White Sox and Washington were idle.

"The way it's planned, the pitchers will go in their regular rotation for the remaining 11 games—Bob Gibson, Ray Washburn, Nelson Briles and Steve Carlton," Red Schoendienst, manager of the Cardinals, said Monday night.

That means Gibson will work every fifth day, which will bring him right up to Oct. 2 and the much-awaited confrontation with Detroit's Denny McLain in the World Series opener.

"I'll leave it up to Gibson if he wants to sit out one start," Schoendienst added, "and I may pitch all the relievers in the last game. I'll also get some of the regulars out for a few days. But the last four games I'll play them all."

Willie McCovey drove in four runs in San Francisco's victory over Cincinnati, which prevented the Reds from moving into a virtual tie for second place.

McCovey's two-run double highlighted a five-run rally in the seventh inning that gave rookie reliever Rich Robertson his first major league victory.

The slim crowd of 2,361, smallest in the Giants' San Francisco history, saw Willie Mays engage in a verbal altercation with two Air Force sergeants in the stands.

Mays had just made a running catch and was approaching the dugout in the middle of the fourth inning when he was intercepted by

Bobby Bonds and Manager Herman Franks and the sergeants were ejected from the park.

"All I said was, 'Nice catch; for a $100,000 bum you're earning your money,'" explained Sgt. Jay Eash of the Alameda Air Station.

Bill Singer scattered nine hits and his two-run double capped a five-run uprising in the sixth inning that broke a scoreless tie with Atlanta as the Dodgers won for the 11th time in 13 games. Jim Lefebvre singled in the first run, Len Gabrielson doubled home the second and the third scored on an error by Felix Millan.

By ROBERT L. SHAFFER CLEVELAND (AP) — Al Salerno and Bill Valentine, claiming success in their efforts to organize the 20 umpires of the American League, say they will fight their firing by Joe Cronin, president of the league.

The 35-year-old Valentine, bristling over the firing Monday, told The Associated Press, "There's no doubt that we were released from our jobs because of our organizing activities." He said the proposed union had the support of a majority of the umpires.

League officials confirmed the firing but denied that union activity was the cause.

"Salerno met with National League umpires Thursday night," Valentine asserted. "Friday, the cards were mailed to every American League umpire. Today (Monday) we were fired."

"Eighteen years in this profession ... you don't go sour overnight," he said.

Salerno, 37, said he was shocked by the firing.

"It was my turn to work the World Series," he said. "I thought that was what he (Cronin) was calling about."

"He asked how I was and about my flight out, then he told me my contract was not being renewed for 1969 ... that I was fired."

It's Not Little Red Schoolhouse

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Now that the schoolhouse and classroom are taking on a new look from kindergarten to college, architects are hoping that vocational-technical schools will be upgraded in the process.

Clint Mochon of Milwaukee, well-known architect in school circles points out that students in these schools have been inhibited by their physical environment, underscoring a fact he has already suspected, that he is a second class student.

The art of architecture can sweep away these visual blocks to enthusiastic acceptance of occupational training that is immensely important to the nation and future industry, he explained at a conference on occupational training.

It would be important, he says, to stress campuslike atmosphere with lawns, shrubbery, walks. A small park should be reserved with greenery and benches, even if school space must go underground.

The ideal technical school, he says, should be housed in a group of two buildings that are shaped and fluted to give texture and shadows, each one two stories high with its own classrooms and equipment. He visualizes them decorated with murals of ceramic tiles or concrete. Windows can be eliminated to save expense, indoor lighting and colors can be substituted for outdoor atmosphere.

Mochon's studies of vocational students reactions to interior design shows that they respect carpeting and well-designed furniture, and even converse in lower tones away from the chill atmosphere of the "institutional building look."

A step further would be the ideal, in Mochon's opinion. He would like to see a combination of liberal arts and technical arts in a single structure or complex as the best insurance against loss of pride and interest. "This would assure the technical school student the same prestige accorded a student who studies these courses in a community college," he explains.

New developments in elementary schools stress open area planning. A new school wing designed by Mochon's firm for primary students is 100 ft. by 100 ft. is an carpeted acoustically tiled area that is divided into three free-form classrooms of varying sizes — square, triangular, round.

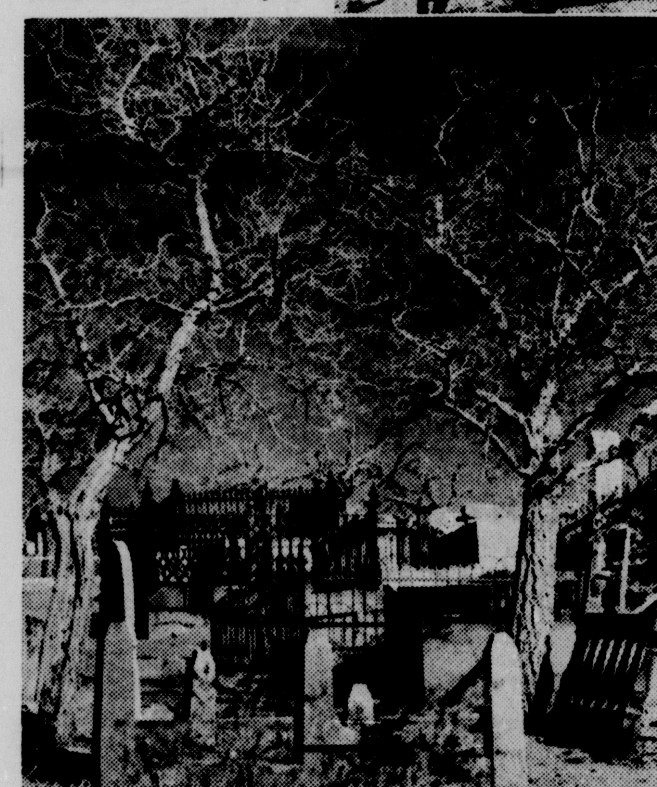

Everything is movable — chairs, cabinets, chalk boards, coat closets. Three of the eight classrooms that eventually will occupy the space are separated only by cabinets.

FREE FORM CLASSROOMS. At Prairie View Elementary School at North Prairie Wis., these lightweight desks are moved into circles, straight lines, small or large groups. Back of storage cabinets serve adjacent classroom as chalkboard area.

Devotees of western history agree that Virginia City, Nev., is the most celebrated and lively ghost town in the world. Founded in 1859 on the site of the Comstock Lode, the most spectacular gold and silver discovery in the United States, the town had a population of 30,000 persons by 1862. After producing nearly $750 million worth of valuable metal, the mines petered out and the city became a ghost town. Today only 500 persons live in Virginia City, but more than 500,000 tourists annually visit the authentic old town located between Reno and Carson City.

Virginia City

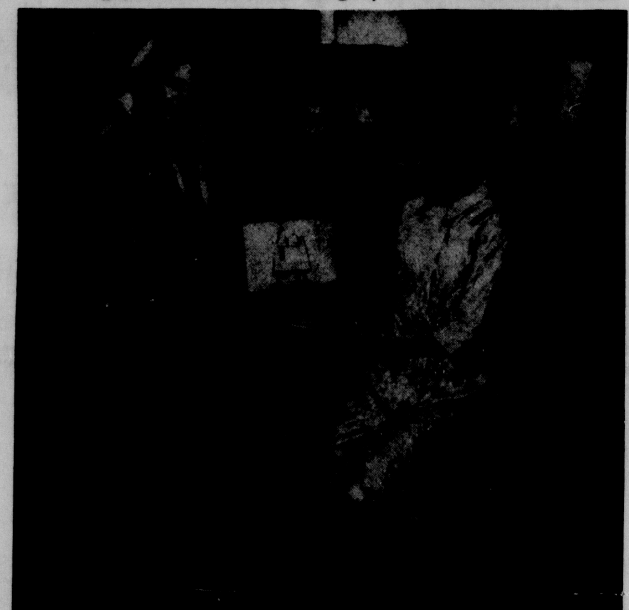

Set at a respectable distance north of town, the old cemetery reflects the general atmosphere of the ghost town. Old gravesites, some with faded wooden markers, are steeped in history of a bygone era. It was in Virginia City, in 1863, that Samuel Clemens became Mark Twain while reporting for the Territorial Enterprise, which is still being published.

Wallpaper Can Set the Pace

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a trend to fixing up old houses — city brownstones, farmhouses, or Victorian homes.

If you are decorating one, the project may be simplified by taking a tour of old houses or visiting actual restorations in many areas of the United States.

Zelina Brunschwig, well-known authority on historic textiles, says they inspire many different style ideas.

She has just reproduced the fabrics and wallcoverings used throughout the Liberty Hall restoration in Kenansville, North Carolina, ancestral plantation built in 1800, and in 1964 donated to the county.

She says wallpaper and fabrics set the pace of the house. They also disguise such problems as too-high or too-low ceilings. Wall borders may be used as cornice moldings to create architectural interest inexpensively when original moldings have been removed. Wallpaper panels can define areas in a room and substitute the effect of original panelling.

Design motif from the 18th and 19th centuries include stripes, geometrics, birds, butterflies, pastoral scenes, Paisleys, toiles, damasks, checks and even Chinese figures.

Bright colors make small dark rooms seem larger. Some marvelous combinations available are brown and beige, yellow and orange on white, peach on beige, pink on pale green, orange and pine on cream, lacquer and black, blue and yellow on white, pink and orange on orange.

In many old houses rooms surround the central hall, Mrs. Brunschwig says. The color scheme for the entire house can be taken from the shades of the wallpaper or rug used in the hall.

In the entrance hall of the Kenan house she used a parrot motif, blue green and red wallpaper on a light blue ground. The eighteenth century English needlepoint carpet was placed in a gentlemen's bedroom. Its tones of beige, brown, turquoise matched a brown on white dust ruffle and canopy cover.

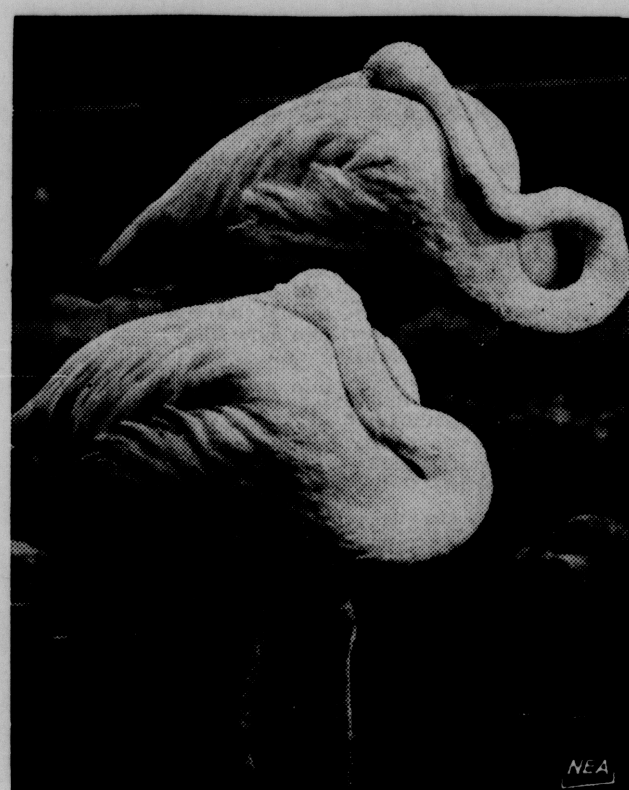

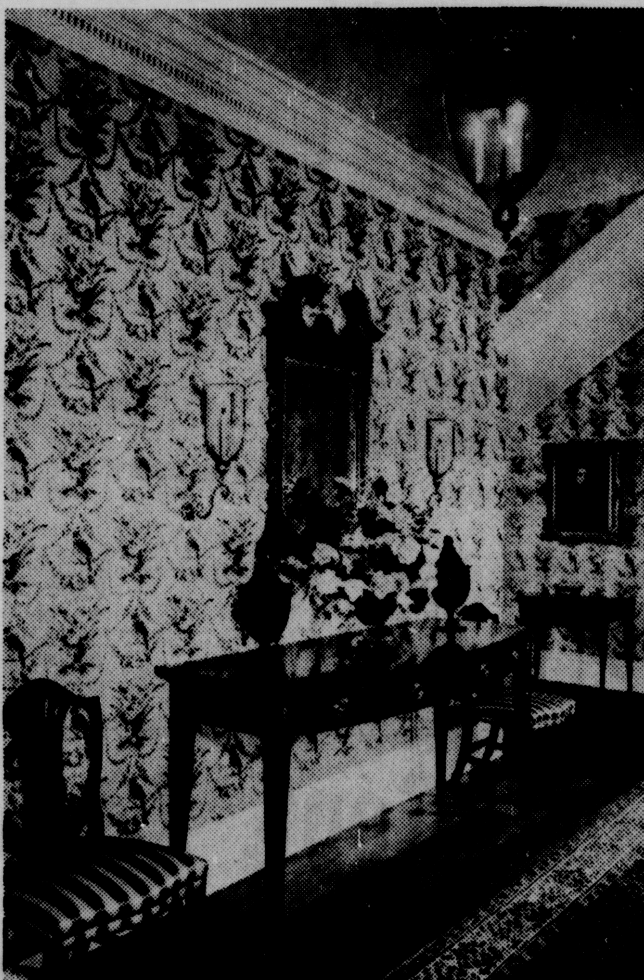

Motif and colors in upstairs hall curtains — red, orange and blue flowers, leaves and butterflies on a beige trellis background — were taken from an early 19th century hatbox of flowers.

The formal dining room used during cold months was papered with a lacquer red and blue on cream print of birds and flowers inspired by an 18th century document.

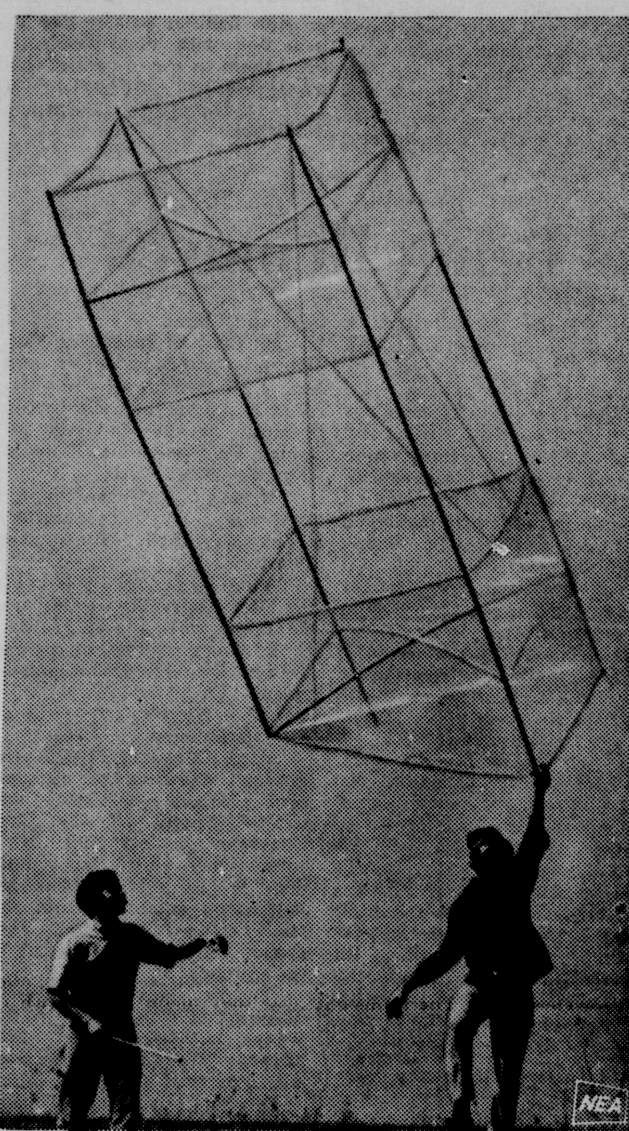

Girl To Study Primitives

PORT MORESBY (AP) — For the next five years a young Japanese woman will be the constant daily companion of one of the world's most primitive people, the Sissimins of the West Sepik District of New Guinea — separated from any form of civilization by sheer limestone ridges which rise in some places to 6,000 feet.

She is Miss Sachiko Hatanaka, a Japanese anthropologist doing research for a Ph.D. thesis through the University of Tokyo.

Ann Landers

Disappointed in Girl Watching

Dear Ann Landers: give us credit because we have no credit references. How can we get credit references when nobody will give us credit? It is a vicious circle and we don't know what to do about it.

Why do some females appear in public with their hair rolled up in curlers? Don't they consider themselves on display when they go to the drug store, the bakery, the market, to the park, on the bus or what have you?

More and more I see women running around with metal and plastic junk attached to their heads. It is, in my opinion, an insult to the world at large. Such women are saying, "You are not important to me. I don't care how I look in your presence." Why do they do it? -- MINOT, N. C., MALE

Dear Minot Male: Disrespect for others stems from a lack of self-respect. Women who appear in public in hair curlers (ditto short shorts, halters, barefoot, etc.) advertise the fact that they consider themselves slob and feel it is useless to present themselves as ladies.

Dear Ann Landers: We are a young couple just starting out. I am not working at present because we are expecting a baby in December. My husband is in the service.

My problem is that we cannot get credit. No one will

We have never gone bad on a debt and we have no bills other than the rent, utilities, telephone—like most other people. We have been turned down by at least 10 different places, including two banks. What do you suggest? -- MRS. MERRY—GO—ROUND

Dear Merry: Get some character references from three or four people who know you well—a high school principal, a clergyman, the manager of a store where you have been shopping (for cash). If you are new in the city, write to people in your home town. If you and your husband can present some letters from individuals who will vouch for your integrity you should have no trouble getting credit.

Dear Ann Landers: Last year I got VD from the only boy I ever went with. He was 19 and I was 16. I had never even heard of VD and didn't know what was wrong with me. My girl friend noticed sores on my face and guessed. She advised me to go to the nearest hospital and ask for treatment right away. I took her advice and I am happy to say I am perfectly O.K. now. But something is bothering me. I had to give my right name. How secret are those records? Can any nurse or doctor see them? Can student nurses get into those files?

Some girls I know are going into nursing and I live in fear they will find out about me. Please rush your answer. --WORRIED.

Dear Worried: The only people who have access to those records are medical people who must refer to them for further treatment, should it be necessary. The chance of one of your friends learning of your past illness is extremely small. Forget it.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

If You Were the Judge

Judge Wrestles with Equality of the Sexes

By Jack Strauss

LL.B.

Teena cut a wide swath among men. Weighing 200 and plenty she would have much preferred to cut them down, however, when the State Athletic Commission refused to grant her a wrestling license. Insisting that the refusal was due to discrimination and the mid-Victorian concept of womanhood possessed by the men on the board, Teena swayed her delicate frame into court and demanded that the license be issued to her.

"Under the law," she told the judge, "men can no longer treat women like dainty pieces of porcelain that belong home on the shelf. Now, what's good for the goose is good for the gander. The Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment says that men and women must be treated the same! If men can get a license to wrestle, so can women."

"You can't treat them the same," was the answer of the Athletic Commission, "because obviously, they are not the same. If they were, then we'd really have a problem."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you direct that Teena be given a license to wrestle?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! He held that the 14th Amendment does not require that all persons be treated alike; that a state may classify its citizens provided that the classification is not arbitrary and that all persons in the class are treated the same. The Constitution does not demand that things which are different in fact be treated as though they were the same, concluded the judge. Thus, despite the possible mid-Victorian attitude of the Athletic Commission, there does exist a reasonable difference between men and women to justify the Commission's refusal to give Teena a license to wrestle.

Washington
Report

By Senator Symington

MISSOURI, FEDERAL GOVERNMENT WORKING TOGETHER—As example of the growing Federal-State local partnership in helping to meet problems in our State, following is a summary of some of the programs, loans and grants announced in a recent typical week:

Kansas City and St. Louis were among 26 cities designated to participate in a Small Business Administration program to stimulate minority-owned businesses in inner cities.

Missouri was named by the Labor Department to participate in its Work Incentive project and will receive $2,285,847 to provide training for 1,800 persons on welfare.

Poplar Bluff received a $265,000 Housing and Urban Development (HUD) grant for improvements in its water system.

Wagner Electric Corporation in St. Louis received an Army contract of $4.5 million for parts for artillery shells.

Missouri Southern College in Joplin receive a loan of $1,348,000 from HUD for two new dormitories, one for men and one for women.

St. Louis received $60,000 from HUD for planning 1500 new low-rent homes.

The Labor Department approved Manpower Development and Training Act projects for Hannibal, St. Joseph, Chillicothe, Flat River, Sikeston and Kansas City.

The Office of Economic Opportunity approved $804,826 to the State of Missouri for 770 migrant and seasonal farm workers.

MERAMEC RIVER BASIN STUDY PLANNED—Findings in the joint study by the National Park Service and the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation of the national recreation area potential of the Meramec River Basin are to be reported to the Secretary of the Interior in December, 1968.

Because it adjoins and is a part of the heavily populated region of Greater St. Louis, there is broad interest in this study. The Interior Department has assured that full consideration will be given to all recreation potential in both the Lower and upper portions of the Basin.

MISSOURI SPEAKING ENGAGEMENTS—This past week has been taken up by Foreign Relations Committee hearings on the Treaty of Non-proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, and gun control legislation debate on the Senate floor.

Committee Approves Fortas' Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Abe Fortas' nomination to the chief justice won the approval of the Senate Judiciary Committee today, but still faced serious trouble in the Senate itself.

The committee vote was 11 to 6. The battleground now shifts to the Senate, where a filibuster is threatened against confirming the nomination.

The outcome is in doubt. It takes a two-thirds majority of senators voting to choke off a filibuster by putting a debate-limiting cloture rule into effect.

Opponents, who include Republicans and Southern Democrats, claim they have the votes to keep the debate going and perhaps enough to defeat the nomination outright, which would require only a simple majority.

Fortas, an associate justice on the Supreme Court, was nominated by President Johnson June 26 to succeed Earl Warren as chief justice. Johnson accepted Warren's retirement effective on the confirmation of a successor.

The motion in committee to report Fortas' nomination favorably to the Senate was made by Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla.

Voting for it, in addition to Smathers, were Sens. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn.; Philip A. Hart, D-Mich.; Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.; Birch Bayh, D-Ind.; V. Long, D-Mo., who later was Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md.; Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill.; Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb.; Hugh Scott, R-Pa.

Voting against were Chairman James O. Eastland, Senate confirmation. D-Miss., and Sens. John L. McClellan, D-Ark.; Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C.; Hiram L. Fong, action.

R-Hawaii; Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn.

The only absent member of the committee was Sen. Edward from his wife.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield told the Senate Monday that if Fortas is not confirmed, Warren probably will stay on as chief justice "for a long time to come."

Warren has made his retirement contingent upon Fortas' confirmation.

The controversy over Fortas' nomination prompted the introduction of legislation Monday to bar the Supreme Court from overturning jury findings of obscenity.

The St. Louis consulting firm estimated in a proposal and scope of service read at the last regular city council meeting that it would require about six months to complete the study at an estimated cost of $7,200, of which the city would be obligated to pay $2,400 or one third.

The remainder of the bill is to be paid with federal funds.

The neighborhood analysis is needed for recertification of the city's workable program.

The workable program is the city's overall plan for the removal and prevention of blight. Five of the program's seven elements were verbally approved when submitted recently in Ft. Worth, Tex., at the regional office of the Housing and Urban Development office.

City Accepts Bartholomew For Neighborhood Analyses

City Manager W. Raymott Miller wrote a letter to Harland Bartholomew and Associates in St. Louis last Tuesday accepting their proposal to do a neighborhood analyses for the City of Sikeston.

The neighborhood analyses is a survey of all houses and existing buildings in the town. Each structure is rated according to the soundness of the structure. Maps are prepared showing exactly where the houses are, and what condition they are in.

Judge Overrules Motion To Vacate Rape Sentence

BENTON — Circuit Judge Marshall Craig overruled a motion to vacate judgment and sentence following a hearing on the motion filed by attorneys representing Joe Lester Slayton, 26, Chaffee, Monday in circuit court.

Slayton is serving the remainder of a 15-year penitentiary term imposed in 1958 when he was found guilty of a rape charge.

The hearing revived memories of a brutal slaying of a former Charleston athlete, John A. Malugen. Malugen and his girl friend were parking on the night of Jan. 5, 1957, when two masked men interrupted.

Malugen was shot to death and his girl friend was dragged into a cotton field and raped. Slayton was convicted of raping Malugen's girl friend.

Lynn Wayne Hester, then 18, was convicted of the Malugen murder and is serving a life sentence in the state penitentiary.

Slayton's motion yesterday contained three allegations. He alleged that the sentence he is serving is an illegal sentence, because he claimed he was charged with statutory rape, for which a 15-year sentence is illegal, assistant prosecuting attorney Tom Gilmore related.

Slayton also alleged that his statements used in the original trial were illegally obtained and were used to force him to enter a plea of guilty. He further alleged in the motion that his court appointed attorneys failed to provide him with effective counsel.

Slayton remarked in the hearing that Judge Craig, who heard the original case, had remarked on the sentencing that he would have given Slayton a lighter sentence, but he would have been run out of the county if he had.

Marine Column Hit Hard

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops caught a column of U. S. Marines as the Leathernecks were digging in for the night Monday, killed 25 and wounded 126 with more than 200 mortar rounds and a hail of small arms fire.

The Americans struck back with mortars, artillery and helicopter gunships. The Marines reported 27 of the enemy killed in the 10-hour fight four miles south of the central part of the demilitarized zone.

The Marines were from the 26th Regiment, the defenders of Khe Sanh who held out against a 77-day Communist siege last winter, and then abandoned that outpost. The casualties Monday were comparable to those on the worst days of Khe Sanh.

The first North Vietnamese barrage pounded in at 3:30 p.m. just as the Marines were moving into defensive positions for the night, one of the most vulnerable spots troops can be in. The Marines apparently were caught before they could get their foxholes dug.

Nuclear Treaty Advances

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee today approved a treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons and sent it to the floor for action.

The vote was 13-3, with three abstentions. The majority overrode objections of members who urged delay because of the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Acting Chairman John Sparkman, D-Ala., said he hoped the Senate would act during the current session of Congress on the nonproliferation treaty. No date has been set for a Senate vote.

A two-thirds vote will be needed to give Senate consent to the treaty under terms of the Constitution.

The heavy endorsement in the committee came after weeks of uncertainty over whether the treaty would reach the floor in view of the Czech crisis and concern about other Soviet intentions.

Johnson Raps Price Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson condemned Chrysler Corp.'s boost in 1969 model car prices today, saying it would take $750 million from pockets of American families buying new cars if it spreads throughout the industry.

"This," Johnson said is a statement, "is an onerous and unfair burden on the consumer. The Cabinet Committee on Price Stability has informed me that there is absolutely no excuse for the Chrysler action and that this price increase should not stand."

Chrysler announced Monday it is raising prices on new models an average of $89 a car, or 2.9 per cent. Johnson called this excessive, as did Arthur M. Okun, chairman of his price stability committee.

Okun also is chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors.

Johnson said the Chrysler action represents a sharp blow to the national battle against economic inflation. He called on car makers to recognize the public interest and "exercise restraint and responsibility at this critical hour" in the battle against inflation.

He justified his appeal on grounds that no major industry has benefited more from prosperity in recent years and none has "a greater stake in protecting that prosperity."

Two recommended fines would be $1 paid by each member at the meeting following his birthday and anniversary, and $1 be paid by each member upon the arrival of a child and or grandchild.

This money would be used to give to the Rotary foundation treasury.

Jones said, "Sikeston Rotary members who fail to bring an item of canned goods on the first meeting night in each month will be charged 25 cents. This money will be used to buy meat and groceries for needy families in the area, at times such as in the loss of a dwelling or at Christmas time. In conjunction with this, the canned goods collected will be distributed to the same individuals in need."

New Industry at Bluff

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — An industrial development plan that has been under discussion for more than 10 years appeared close to achievement in Poplar Bluff today.

The Rowe Furniture Co. of Salem, Va., said it would establish a branch plant in Poplar Bluff.

Still necessary, however, is approval by the state division of commerce and industrial development of a $2 million bond issue. Then if it is later approved by the city's voters the plant can be built to provide 130,000 square feet of production space.

The plant will employ an estimated 300 workers and provide an annual payroll of about $1.5 million.

The 11 a.m. session will reconvene at 1 a.m. and continue the topic till 2 p.m. when Howard L. McFadden, assistant attorney general, will speak on "The Statutory Authority of Police in Riot Disturbances."

A member of the National Guard staff of the Adjutant General's office will give the final speech at 3 p.m. on "Coordination of Services-Police and National Guard."

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops caught a column of U. S. Marines as the Leathernecks were digging in for the night Monday, killed 25 and wounded 126 with more than 200 mortar rounds and a hail of small arms fire.

The Americans struck back with mortars, artillery and helicopter gunships. The Marines reported 27 of the enemy killed in the 10-hour fight four miles south of the central part of the demilitarized zone.

The Marines were from the 26th Regiment, the defenders of Khe Sanh who held out against a 77-day Communist siege last winter, and then abandoned that outpost. The casualties Monday were comparable to those on the worst days of Khe Sanh.

The first North Vietnamese barrage pounded in at 3:30 p.m. just as the Marines were moving into defensive positions for the night, one of the most vulnerable spots troops can be in. The Marines apparently were caught before they could get their foxholes dug.

Nuclear Treaty Advances

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee today approved a treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons and sent it to the floor for action.

The vote was 13-3, with three abstentions.

The majority overrode objections of members who urged delay because of the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Acting Chairman John Sparkman, D-Ala., said he hoped the Senate would act during the current session of Congress on the nonproliferation treaty. No date has been set for a Senate vote.

A two-thirds vote will be needed to give Senate consent to the treaty under terms of the Constitution.

The heavy endorsement in the committee came after weeks of uncertainty over whether the treaty would reach the floor in view of the Czech crisis and concern about other Soviet intentions.

Johnson Raps Price Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson condemned Chrysler Corp.'s boost in 1969 model car prices today, saying it would take $750 million from pockets of American families buying new cars if it spreads throughout the industry.

"This," Johnson said is a statement, "is an onerous and unfair burden on the consumer. The Cabinet Committee on Price Stability has informed me that there is absolutely no excuse for the Chrysler action and that this price increase should not stand."

Chrysler announced Monday it is raising prices on new models an average of $89 a car, or 2.9 per cent. Johnson called this excessive, as did Arthur M. Okun, chairman of his price stability committee.

Okun also is chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Johnson said the Chrysler action represents a sharp blow to the national battle against economic inflation. He called on car makers to recognize the public interest and "exercise restraint and responsibility at this critical hour" in the battle against inflation.

He justified his appeal on grounds that no major industry has benefited more from prosperity in recent years and none has "a greater stake in protecting that prosperity."

Facets of Rotary Explained

The Sikeston Rotarians dined with their Rotary Anns last night at their annual Governor's Banquet.

Felix Snider, governor of District 609, told the Rotarians about Rotary International on a world basis. Snider said, "In Ceylon a Rotary Club of 34 members represented seven religions. The Rotary meeting is the only place where they can meet as friends and discuss what they like."

They wouldn't discuss each other's religion or politics outside the Rotary Club for fear of causing misunderstanding between their own people, he said.

Rotary Volunteers Abroad is a world project where a Rotarian and his Ann spends four to six months helping an underdeveloped country with its certain skills. Snider said that he hopes to be able to go overseas and help with this project in a couple of years.

After the governor's talk the Rotary Club gave a report on several projects for the coming year. On Rotary foundation, sargeant at arms Pat E. Jones told the club fines would be 10 cents for being late, 25 cents for being absent, 25 cents for not wearing name button. Two recommended fines would be $1 paid by each member at the meeting following his birthday and anniversary, and $1 be paid by each member upon the arrival of a child or grandchild. This money would be used to give to the Rotary foundation treasury.

Jones said, "Sikeston Rotary members who fail to bring an item of canned goods on a first meeting night in each month will be charged 25 cents. This money will be used to buy meat and groceries for needy families in the area, at times such as in the loss of a dwelling or at Christmas time. In conjunction with this, the canned goods collected will be distributed to the same individuals in need."

Report on the Rotary Magazine was given by Chip Schmerbauch. He told the club that besides the membership receiving the magazine, copies were being sent to the Chamber of Commerce, Missouri Delta Community Hospital, Sikeston Public Library, high school library and the Spanish teacher who receives the Spanish version of the magazine.

Paul Hill's report on world community service was that the club's intention is to collect from each member one book representative of our professions or our country and forward them to a matched district club overseas.

Max Chandler reported on matched district and club program. He said, "Our matched districts are no. 275, Australia, and no. 325, Burma-India - Nepal. District 275 has requested tapes, manuscripts or color slides. In this area the club plans on taping significant programs or speakers and forwarding to them."

District 325 has indicated a desire for publications. To comply with their desire, the club will forward publications, periodicals representative of our businesses to them."

International youth was reported on by Allen Blanton, who said, "We expect in this area to arrange for foreign students who are enrolled at Southeast Missouri State to speak at our meetings."

Melvin McMackins, president, gave a short summary of the reports and dismissed the meeting.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS:

Our columnist Victor Riesel, putting in some energetic legwork and abandoning the pack for personal coverage across thousands of miles, once again has come in ahead with stories on two major political developments.

Today, George Wallace's inroads on the labor vote crops up in stories being filed from scores of cities. Victor Riesel wrapped all this up weeks ago, after a long talk with the American Independent Party's candidate himself.

Riesel, in a two-part series dispatched on August 19 and 20, gave full specifics, detailed the unions, reported the documents behind this phenomenon.

Today, more than three weeks later, this is being so widely reported, and is of such sharp concern to labor that to union chiefs everywhere are launching a counter-offensive.

And, Victor Riesel's was days ahead on the behind-the-scenes story of the Mobilizers and Resisters invasion of Chicago. On Friday, August 30, Riesel filed a story disclosing documented evidence of demonstrators' plans mademonths ago for the baiting and attacks on the Chicago police. Riesel reported the full force of the police counterattacks. But his was the first inside story of the Mobilizers' assault on law and order. All this has been corroborated in the past few days.

HARRY F. BYRD

The Berryville, Va., apple-grower, former governor of Virginia and U.S. Senator from Virginia, 1933-1965, is dead of cancer. He had been in a coma since early July. A few remembrances of an honest, God-fearing champion of liberty who fully understood the story of the prodigal son.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, the Virginia Statesman, did a lot for Virginia and even more for all Americans. He left us a rich legacy of knowledge - but we are his prodigal children.

How much the heirs of this knowledge owe him will be tallied only by time - that commodity that Byrd used so well to fight wasters whom he believed were squandering the toil and earnings of taxpayers.

Senator Byrd was called an aristocrat, but his cause was the cause of the little man who would suffer most the hell and damnation of a 30-year fiscal binge of deficit spending and dollar erosion.

Moderation - that was his fiscal sermon as he attacked the legions of Keynesian, deficit-spending economists. A Democrat, he supported Franklin Delano Roosevelt's platform in 1932, as advertised - moderation in federal spending - then fought him when in federal spending - then fought him when ("Keynes got hold of him") and as he saw the platform as a raw deal of tax, spend and elect. Byrd voted against the NRA and TVA and Roosevelt's attempt to "pack" the Supreme Court. The die was cast and Byrd would fight the spenders the rest of his life.

Democrat Byrd was at odds with ("He's just another spender") Truman ("There are too many Byrds in Congress"). Ike was surely marked for a ferocious Byrd attack when he ran up that $12 billion budget deficit in 1959. John F. Kennedy wanted to spend, too, but there was Chairman Harry Byrd of the Senate Finance Committee, a practicin' and a preachin' fiscal restraint as head of the Senate Finance Committee. Kennedy's legislative end-run attempts around Byrd's committee were tough football, but Chairman Byrd was playing tackle. One such effort involved medicare which died in the committee operating room.

Said Byrd of JFK: "He has ability, no doubt about it." Of Byrd, JFK said respectfully: "Most gracious person you'd want to meet, but he gives us fits."

Byrd's fit-giving nature in saving the taxpayer's money came naturally if one believes frugal genes can hold out for 1145 years - the span between Byrd's birth in 1887 back to 742, the birth of a Byrd ancestor, Charlemagne. Both were champions of economy. And like Charlemagne who ruled all of France and a sizeable slice of what is now both Germanies, Byrd built a political empire - in Virginia. Both were likeable sorts who wore simple clothes (both were fond of white linen), and each suffered a bad limp. Charlemagne was a victim of fevers which caused him to hobble, and Byrd's arthritis was so painful he favored his left leg. He waved off all thoughts of a knee operation that would end the pain, whipping it with sheer will. He climbed his beloved Virginia mountains, Old Rag, Hawk's Bill, Naked Top, and took brisk walks along Rock Creek, a cool, green, serpentine park in the District of Columbia.

Harry Byrd built up his left knee with so much muscle his knees looked mismatched. The arthritis came after a fall on one of those many walks, and it finally caused him to retire from the Senate last November. His son was named to replace him.

Likely, the real reason Byrd was so careful with the taxpayer's buck was his hatred of debt. Virginia's taxpayers had suffered too long paying off $45 million in pre-Civil War debt, and when he became governor, he put the Old Dominion on a "get-now, pay-now" basis. The pre-Byrd administration had a $1.3 million budget deficit, but when Byrd left the state house in 1930, Virginia had $4.2 million in the bank. As he built up the state, he was constructing what became known as The Organization - Byrd's political machine that has ruled the state since. The recent primary tossed out two Byrd men (Sen. Robertson and Rep. Smith, Chairman of the House Rules Committee) but nominated Harry F. Byrd, Jr., to keep the machine going. Some say it is sputtering of old age, but the Byrds who settled Virginia in 1670 (William Byrd I), and served as a Captain in Washington's Army (Thomas T.), and lead Confederate troops (Col. William) in the Civil War, and explored the Antarctic (Adm. Richard E., Harry's brother) have conquered more formidable adversaries than so-called winds of change.

Big government and the cost of it were subjects that sent Byrd into flights of economic discourse. The growing number of federal employees - a sign of representative government giving way to bureaucracy - was a constant irritation. And it was Senator Byrd who told the taxpayers in 1962 that the national debt wasn't $290 billion. The national obligation, meaning all costs that will eventually have to be paid, he said was $1.250 trillion - or $298 billion quadrupled, with $58 billion left over in the debit column.

It was this awareness of fiscal insanity that led Byrd to become the nation's fiscal conscience - indeed, its economic psychiatrist. He wanted the people to know he new they and the nation were going. In 1941, he wrote an amendment to the Revenue Act of that year which, when adopted, set up the Joint Committee on the Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures. Among other things, it reports the monthly cost and number of federal employees. Rarely have either shown a decrease. LIFE LINES features the report regularly - the last one showing a two-year increase in Executive Branch personnel of 299,345 from August 1964 to August 1966. The monthly payroll in almost the same period increased $159,242,000, from $1,430,729,000 to $1,589,971,000.

Freshman Senator Hubert Humphrey is said to have termed Byrd's Federal Expenditures committee an example of waste and extravagance. Byrd took up an hour of Senate debate to blister the freshman from Minnesota. Humphrey later said the remark was "the worst mistake I ever made."

Is deficit spending, playing fast and loose with the dollar, the worst mistake the U.S. ever made?

Time will tell, but mercifully Harry F. Byrd was spared that day of reckoning.

The President has again proclaimed September 17-23 as CONSTITUTION WEEK. Because of George Washington and his valiant men, our American heritage was made secure. Our Nation should be grateful and thankful to our Revolutionary "freedom fighters" at Valley Forge. One of the primary purposes of our Constitution is to preserve the proper balance between freedom and authority. Our generation has witnessed assault after assault on its Constitutional balance. J. Edgar Hoover has stated, "If we have the courage and the determination to face the future with the humility and the dedicated sacrifice of our Founding Fathers then the Star-Spangled Banner shall continue to fly over this... our land of the free and the home of the brave."

THE DAYS OF AUTUMN

It always seems that summer has barely started when someone smells "fall in the air." Many people hate to see the leaves begin to turn. But, if they will look around them when fall is in "full bloom", they will find that they are in the midst of one of the most pleasant seasons of the year. While there is a tang in the air, there is also a new freshness. Crisp mornings and falling leaves tell us winter is coming. We will look to such things as winterizing and tidying up the premises. It is time to think about snow tires for the car and make sure a supply of antifreeze is standing handy.

Those who live in the southland may not need to take all these precautions, but the coming of fall for them means that shortly the winter vacation season starts. In many southern communities, visitors will arrive in droves, and it is time to prepare for them. All in all, the passing of the seasons adds zest to life. Autumn begins this year on September 23, so those who have been smelling fall in the air will be vindicated on that day. Autumn marks the beginning of the challenging and busy days of the fall season.

The issue of 14(b) is one of transcendent importance. This is not partisan and political, this is a fight over a fundamental American freedom—the right of free choice.

Representative M. Gene Snyder of Kentucky states, "I believe that government involvement in business and big centralized government can well be the ruination of our free enterprise system and our country. As the federal government acquires more and more power, they are inclined to exercise it. Once all of the power is centralized, we will have lost our American way of life."

Following too closely continues to be a frequent contributing cause of traffic accidents in Missouri. Records of the Missouri Highway Patrol show that during the first six months of the year, 2,193 violations of following another vehicle too closely were indicated in traffic accidents investigated by the Patrol.

State law requires that the driver of a vehicle shall not follow another vehicle more closely than is reasonably safe and prudent, having due regard for the speed of such vehicle and the traffic upon and the condition of the roadway.

Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, pointed out that many items need to be considered in determining the safe distance at which one car may follow another. He noted that the driver's attention and reaction time, the speed of the car, the condition of the vehicle's brakes and tires, type of roadway and the weather affect the distance required to stop a car if the need arises.

"The driver's attention and his reaction time determine how soon the brakes can be applied after an emergency arises," Hockaday said. "All other conditions determine how soon the car can be stopped after the brakes are applied."

"The speed of a car affects the amount of following distance needed for safety more constantly than any other factor," he continued. "As vehicle speed is increased, the distance for safe stopping is greatly increased. For example, under ideal conditions the total stopping distance for a vehicle traveling 40 miles per hour is 149 feet. At 70 miles per hour the total stopping distance is increased to 532 feet. These stopping distances assume it takes the driver three-quarters of a second to begin braking and that the brakes are in good condition. Lower reaction time on the part of the driver or faulty brakes will further decrease the margin of safety."

H.L. Hunt Says

THE DEPRIVED In a Christian nation such as ours concern for the deprived is proper and expected. Indeed, it is the history of our people that the concern for the deprived has prompted generosity, admired by the entire civilized world.

Within our own borders, however, concern for the deprived has waned. And the deprived are grievously in need. Federal funds and projects have not been enough. Appropriations and budgeted bounties have not done the job. There have been commissions and authorities. Experts have been empaneled. Yet the plight of the deprived in our country grows worse, not better.

Who are these deprived? The woman whose purse is snatched from her hand in the street. The merchant whose cash register is emptied while he is held at bay.

The teenage daughter of a neighbor who is deprived of her virginity, by force. The homeowner who returns to a house from which the TV, the radio, the silverware and the piggy-bank have been stolen.

The taxpayer whose family automobile has been stolen. The jobholder who has had a knife or a gun jammed into his ribs a block from home, is mugged and beaten and robbed.

The vacationing family who returned to find the house stripped of even the furniture. These are the deprived in our land. The really deprived. They outnumber the deadbeats on welfare, the poverty program spongers and the black-program marches by ten to one.

Our police have been cowed into docility toward those who deprive us. Our courts have deprive us. Our politicians have been nauseating in their pandering to pressures—and votes.

We are the deprived—we who pay the taxes, who suffer pain and loss of property and even life. And the time has come to tell the judges, the police, the politicians, and Washington, that you don't aim to be deprived any longer.

If you are one of the deprived, start making noises. Loud. You'll be heard.

MUSKIE'S ETHICS Muskies also sought advice on how to handle contributors who insisted that their money be earmarked for their favorite senators.

"Each contributor," suggested Bernhard, "should be asked to accept that the committee recognizes the donor's preference, but is under no obligation to disburse funds as requested."

This became the rule, and it was soon put to the test. The AFL-CIO submitted, along with a generous contribution, a list of eight senators who should get the money. Muskies amiably refused to give any guarantee.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS:

Our columnist Victor Riesel, putting in some energetic legwork and abandoning the pack for personal coverage across thousands of miles, once again has come in ahead with stories on two major political developments.

Today, George Wallace's inroads on the labor vote crops up in stories being filed from scores of cities. Victor Riesel wrapped all this up weeks ago, after a long talk with the American Independent Party's candidate himself.

Riesel, in a two-part series dispatched on August 19 and 20, gave full specifics, detailed the unions, reported the documents behind this phenomenon.

Today, more than three weeks later, this is being so widely reported, and is of such sharp concern to labor that to union chiefs everywhere are launching a counter-offensive.

And, Victor Riesel was days ahead on the behind-the-scenes story of the Mobilizers and Resisters invasion of Chicago. On Friday, August 30, Riesel filed a story disclosing documented evidence of demonstrators' plans mademoiselle ago for the baiting and attacks on the Chicago police. Riesel reported the full force of the police counterattacks. But his was the first inside story of the Mobilizers' assault on law and order. All this has been corroborated in the past few days.

HARRY F. BYRD

The Berryville, Va., apple-grower, former governor of Virginia and U.S. Senator from Virginia, 1933-1965, is dead of cancer. He had been in a coma since early July. A few remembrances of an honest, God-fearing champion of liberty who fully understood the story of the prodigal son.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, the Virginia Statesman, did a lot for Virginia and even more for all Americans. He left us a rich legacy of knowledge - but we are his prodigal children.

How much the heirs of this knowledge owe him will be totalled only by time - that commodity that Byrd used so well to fight wasters whom he believed were squandering the toil and earnings of taxpayers.

Senator Byrd was called an aristocrat, but his cause was the cause of the little man who would suffer most the hell and damnation of a 30-year fiscal binge of deficit spending and dollar erosion.

Moderation - that was his fiscal sermon as he attacked the legions of Keynesian, deficit - spending economists. A Democrat, he supported Franklin Delano Roosevelt's platform in 1932, as advertised - moderation in federal spending - then fought him when in federal spending - then fought him when ("Keynes got hold of him") and as he saw the platform as a raw deal of tax, spend and elect. Byrd voted against the NRA and TVA and Roosevelt's attempt to "pack" the Supreme Court. The die was cast and Byrd would fight the spenders the rest of his life.

Democrat Byrd was at odds with ("He's just another spender") Truman ("There are too many Byrds in Congress"). Ike was surely marked for a ferocious Byrd attack when he ran up that $12 billion budget deficit in 1959. John F. Kennedy wanted to spend, too, but there was Chairman Harry Byrd of the Senate Finance Committee, a practicin' and a preachin' fiscal restraint as head of the Senate Finance Committee. Kennedy's legislative end-run attempts around Byrd's committee were tough football, but Chairman Byrd was playing tackle. One such effort involved medicare which died in the committee operating room.

Said Byrd of JFK: "He has ability, no doubt about it." Of Byrd, JFK said respectfully: "Most gracious person you'd want to meet, but he gives us fits."

Byrd's fit-giving nature in saving the taxpayer's money came naturally if one believes frugal genes can hold out for 1145 years - the span between Byrd's birth in 1887 back to 742, the birth of a Byrd ancestor, Charlemagne. Both were champions of economy. And like Charlemagne who ruled all of France and a sizeable slice of what is now both Germanies, Byrd built a political empire - in Virginia. Both were likable sorts who wore simple clothes (both were fond of white linen), and each suffered a bad limp. Charlemagne was a victim of fevers which caused him to hobble, and Byrd's arthritis was so painful he favored his left leg. He waved off all thoughts of a knee operation that would end the pain, whipping it with sheer will. He climbed his beloved Virginia mountains, Old Rag, Hawk's Bill, Naked Top, and took brisk walks along Rock Creek, a cool, green, serpentine park in the District of Columbia.

Harry Byrd built up his left knee with so much muscle his knees looked mismatched. The arthritis came after a fall on one of those many walks, and it finally caused him to retire from the Senate last November. His son was named to replace him.

Likely, the real reason Byrd was so careful with the taxpayer's buck was his hatred of debt. Virginia's taxpayers had suffered too long paying off $45 million in pre - Civil War debt, and when he became governor, he put the Old Dominion on a "get-now, pay-now" basis. The pre-Byrd administration had a $1.3 million budget deficit, but when Byrd left the state house in 1930, Virginia had $4.2 million in the bank. As he built up the state, he was constructing what became known as The Organization - Byrd's political machine that has ruled the state since. The recent primary tossed out two Byrd men (Sen. Robertson and Rep. Smith, Chairman of the House Rules Committee) but nominated Harry F. Byrd, Jr., to keep the machine going. Some say it is sputtering of old age, but the Byrds who settled Virginia in 1670 (William Byrd I), and served as a Captain in Washington's Army (Thomas T.), and lead Confederate troops (Col. William) in the Civil War, and explored the Antarctic (Adm. Richard E., Harry's brother) have conquered more formidable adversaries than so-called winds of change.

Big government and the cost of it were subjects that sent Byrd into flights of economic discourse. The growing number of federal employees - a sign of representative government giving way to bureaucracy - was a constant irritation. And it was Senator Byrd who told the taxpayers in 1962 that the national debt wasn't $290 billion. The national obligation, meaning all costs that will eventually have to be paid, he said was $1.250 trillion - or $298 billion quadrupled, with $58 billion left over in the debit column.

It was this awareness of fiscal insanity that led Byrd to become the nation's fiscal conscience - indeed, its economic psychiatrist. He wanted the people to know he - new they and the nation were going. In 1941, he wrote an amendment to the Revenue Act of that year which, when adopted, set up the Joint Committee on the Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures. Among other things, it reports the monthly cost and number of federal employees. Rarely have either shown a decrease. LIFE LINES features the report regularly - the last one showing a two-year increase in Executive Branch personnel of 299,345 from August 1964 to August 1966. The monthly payroll in almost the same period increased $159,242,000, from $1,430,729,000 to $1,589,971,000.

Freshman Senator Hubert Humphrey is said to have termed Byrd's Federal Expenditures committee an example of waste and extravagance. Byrd took up an hour of Senate debate to blister the freshman from Minnesota. Humphrey later said the remark was "the worst mistake I ever made."

Is deficit spending, playing fast and loose with the dollar, the worst mistake the U.S. ever made?

Time will tell, but mercifully Harry F. Byrd was spared that day of reckoning.

The President has again proclaimed September 17-23 as CONSTITUTION WEEK. Because of George Washington and his valiant men, our American heritage was made secure. Our Nation should be grateful and thankful to our Revolutionary "freedom fighters" at Valley Forge. One of the primary purposes of our Constitution is to preserve the proper balance between freedom and authority. Our generation has witnessed assault after assault on its Constitutional balance. J. Edgar Hoover has stated, "If we have the courage and the determination to face the future with the humility and the dedicated sacrifice of our Founding Fathers then the Star-Spangled Banner shall continue to fly over this... our land of the free and the home of the brave."

THE DAYS OF AUTUMN

It always seems that summer has barely started when someone smells "fall in the air." Many people hate to see the leaves begin to turn. But, if they will look around them when fall is in "full bloom", they will find that they are in the midst of one of the most pleasant seasons of the year. While there is a tang in the air, there is also a new freshness. Crisp mornings and falling leaves tell us winter is coming. We will look to such things as winterizing and tidying up the premises. It is time to think about snow tires for the car and make sure a supply of antifreeze is standing handy.

Those who live in the southland may not need to take all these precautions, but the coming of fall for them means that shortly the winter vacation season starts. In many southern communities, visitors will arrive in droves, and it is time to prepare for them. All in all, the passing of the seasons adds zest to life. Autumn begins this year on September 23, so those who have been smelling fall in the air will be vindicated on that day. Autumn marks the beginning of the challenging and busy days of the fall season.

Representative M. Gene Snyder of Kentucky states, "I believe that government involvement in business and big centralized government can well be the ruination of our free enterprise system and our country. As the federal government acquires more and more power, they are inclined to exercise it. Once all of the power is centralized, we will have lost our American way of life."

Following too closely continues to be a frequent contributing cause of traffic accidents in Missouri. Records of the Missouri Highway Patrol show that during the first six months of the year, 2,193 violations of following another vehicle too closely were indicated in traffic accidents investigated by the Patrol.

State law requires that the driver of a vehicle shall not follow another vehicle more closely than is reasonably safe and prudent, having due regard for the speed of such vehicle and the traffic upon and the condition of the roadway.

Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, pointed out that many items need to be considered in determining the safe distance at which one car may follow another. He noted that the driver's attention and reaction time, the speed of the car, the condition of the vehicle's brakes and tires, type of roadway and the weather affect the distance required to stop a car if the need arises. "The driver's attention and his reaction time determine how soon the brakes can be applied after an emergency arises," Hockaday said. "All other conditions determine how soon the car can be stopped after the brakes are applied."

"The speed of a car affects the amount of following distance needed for safety more constantly than any other factor," he continued. "As vehicle speed is increased, the distance for safe stopping is greatly increased. For example, under ideal conditions the total stopping distance for a vehicle traveling 40 miles per hour is 149 feet. At 170 miles per hour the total stopping distance is increased to 532 feet. These stopping distances assume it takes the driver three-quarters of a second to begin braking and that the brakes are in good condition. Lower reaction time on the part of the driver or faulty brakes will further decrease the margin of safety."

"Dad, what's the difference between a gun and a machine gun?" "Well, son," the father replied, "There's a difference. It's just like I spoke and then your mother spoke."

A stout lady glared at her fellow passengers on the bus. "Isn't anyone going to offer me a seat?"

A slim man got up and said, "I'm willing to make a contribution."

Annoyed, the bartender finally agreed to a ten-dollar wager. The bookie turned to the

WASHINGTON -- The facts have been swept under a secrecy label, but President Johnson gave the Kremlin advance assurance that the U.S. would not interfere with any Soviet action against Czechoslovakia.

The President's purpose, ironically, was to forestall a Soviet move into Czechoslovakia by making clear that the U.S. had no military or political designs on the country.

The question came up when the liberal Dubeck government sounded out the U.S. about economic aid. Cautious word was sent back that the U.S. would consider providing financial help, but that this would not imply political or military support.

To allay Soviet suspicions over our dealings with Czechoslovakia, President Johnson relayed to the Kremlin the gist of what the U.S. had told the Dubeck government. In light of the subsequent Soviet invasion, this may have encouraged the Russians to believe they could move into Czechoslovakia without risk.

The invasion, incidentally, caught American military intelligence completely by surprise—despite an elaborate network of electronic listening devices which are supposed to monitor Soviet military moves.

The Pentagon was aware, of course, that Russia had several divisions poised on the Czech border. The Russian military maneuvers had been kept under close surveillance.

But an estimated 330,000 troops, complete with tanks and planes, managed to slip into Czechoslovakia without immediate detection by the massive electronic monitoring equipment. The first word of the invasion came from an informant inside the Czech parrot and said, "Parlez-vous francais?" There was no response.

Nor was there any reply to the question in English, Spanish or German. The bartender picked up the bookie's sawbuck from the bar and went about his business.

On the street, the bookie glared at the bird. "You fink!" he exclaimed. "I've got ten bucks riding on you and you clam up on me. I oughta strangle you!"

"Don't be a jerk," the parrot replied. "Just think of the odds you'll get tomorrow."

THE DEPRIVED
In a Christian nation such as ours concern for the deprived is proper and expected. Indeed, it is the history of our people that concern for the deprived has prompted generosity, admired by the entire civilized world.

Within our own borders, however, concern for the deprived has waned. And the deprived are grievously in need. Federal funds and projects have not been enough. Appropriations and budgeted bounties have not done the job. There have been commissions and authorities. Experts have been empaneled. Yet the plight of the deprived in our country grows worse, not better.

Who are these deprived? The woman whose purse is snatched from her hand in the street.

The merchant whose cash register is emptied while he is held at bay.

The teenage daughter of a neighbor who is deprived of her virginity, by force.

The homeowner who returns to a house from which the TV, the radio, the silverware and the piggy-bank have been stolen.

The taxpayer whose family automobile has been stolen.

The jobholder who has had a knife or a gun jammed into his ribs a block from home, is mugged and beaten and robbed.

The vacationing family who returned to find the house stripped of even the furniture.

These are the deprived in our land. The really deprived. They outnumber the deadbeats on welfare, the poverty program spongers and the black-power marches by ten to one.

Our police have been cowed into docility toward those who deprive us. Our courts have pampered those who deprive us.

Our politicians have been nauseating in their pandering to pressures and votes.

We are the deprived—we who pay the taxes, we who suffer pain and loss—of property and even life.

And the time has come to tell the judges, the police, the politicians, and Washington, that you don't aim to be deprived any longer.

If you are one of the deprived, start making noises. Loud. You'll be heard.

Kegler's Korner

By MARY MEYER
We were not aware that the Newcomer's League had started, until finding the past two weeks results in the envelope at the bowling lanes. Our apologies; and herewith are the results for the past two years, beginning with, Tuesday, Sept. 3.

Pat Happe had both high individual game and series with scores of 154-444. The Percolaters had high team game - 760; and also high team series, a 3220.

The Sparettes and the Peanuts split 2-2; the Percolaters won 3-1 over the Go-Getters; and the Gutter-Dusters won 3-1 over the Hi-Los.

Results for Sept. 10:
Linda Pool had both high individual game and series with scores of 202-460. The Go-Getters had the high team game with 823; and the Gutter-Dusters had the high team series with a 2299.

An added note of interest regarding the high game bowled in this league, last week. As is mentioned above, Linda Pool rolled a 202 and has an average of 111. We would say that congratulations are definitely in order, and wish her many more similar high games.

Donna Kyle picked up the 5-10 split and Erma Braswell, the 5-8-10.

The Percolaters defeated the Hi-Los 3-1; the Gutter-Dusters blanked the Sparettes 4-0; and also, the Go-Getters 4-0 over the Peanuts.

On the Tuesday night league, the Delta Imperiaettes, Norma Baker had both high individual game and series with 199-524. Ziegler Superette collected both high team game and series with a 741-2210.

Mildred Chartreau picked up the 3-10 split; Dorothy Templeton the 6-7-10; Harryette Campbell the 3-10 and Doris Brown, the 5-6. These were the only reported splits and oddly enough, all of these bowlers are on the same team.

Lee's Auto Sales rolled over Imperial Lanes Restaurant 4-0; Barkett's Big Star split 2-2 with Security National Bank; Ferrell's Rental Equipment 3 1/2 to Michelob's 4; and Ziegler's Superette blanked Reiss Dairy 4-0.

With the Friday Bowlettes, Patty Crabb had both high individual game and series with a 203-530.
Rodgers Auto Sales had high team game - 1012 and Nowell Construction had high team series with 2978.

Ruby Andres rolled an all spare game of 182. This is a very difficult thing to do; so difficult, in fact, that Women's International Bowling Congress awards a patch to any woman bowler who achieves this. Our congratulations, Ruby.

Splits picked up: Mary Johnson, the 5-7 and Billie Waldron, the 5-7-9:
In team action:
Rodgers Auto Sales 3-1 over Medical Arts; Nowell Construction 4-0 over Anchor Toy; likewise, International Shoe No. 1 4-0 over Canvas products; L & A Laundry 4-0 over Int'l. Shoe No. 2; and, we hate to be repetitious, Beardsley Chevrolet 4-0 over Hart's Bakery, and finally, a local radio station 4-0 over Sikeston Piano.

He who is slow to anger has great understanding. —(Prov. 14:29).

Perhaps the most important spiritual quality that should be expressed toward life is the love of God. When we are aware of His love and make a sincere effort to pour forth this love to all persons and all situations, we have the sure cure for any problem. Let us build in a feeling of God's love as we walk through our days to meet only love and understanding.

Patricia Ann Smith Says Vows With Stephen L. Taylor

The First Baptist Church was the setting Aug. 31 for the wedding of Miss Patricia Ann Smith and Stephen L. Taylor. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smith. Taylor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melfred Taylor, all of Sikeston. The Rev. James Hackney performed the double ring ceremony at 6 p.m.

Miss Patti McMullin, accompanied by Miss Neva Mae Taylor, aunt of the groom, sang "I Love Thee" and "The Lord's Prayer." John Goodin of Charleston sang "Because."

The bride, escorted down the aisle by her father, wore a floor-length gown of embroidered organza over satin with a jewel neckline and wrist-length bell sleeves. The wattle train of organza over satin was attached at the empire waistline. A seed pearl crown secured an elbow-length illusion veil. She wore a pearl necklace, a gift from the groom, and carried a bouquet of white moon poms.

Mrs. Judy Sickal, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Susan Johnson, Miss Cherry Lopp and Miss Pat Howard. Each wore a formal gown of blue silk broadcloth trimmed with white daisies and carried a long stem white rose bud.

Miss Vicki Throgmorton, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She was dressed in light blue embroidered organza over light blue broadcloth. Her gown featured elbow-length sleeves. She carried a basket of white moon poms.

Mikie Taylor, nephew of the groom, was ringbearer. Candlelighter was Eddie Taylor of Omaha, Neb., also the groom's nephew.

Fred Taylor, brother of the groom, was best man. Mike Taylor, another brother; Doug Marsh and Louis Farris were groomsmen.

Ushers were Jim Sickal, Jim Gooch, Elgin Davis, Dennis Ziegenhorn, Mike Jensen, George Gilmore and Boyce Johnson.

Mrs. Flossie Clinton, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Mittie May Taylor, grandmother of the groom, were present. Their dresses were complemented with white carnation corsages.

The reception was at the church. The bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth. Two golden wedding rings with streamers bearing the names of the couple, and topped by a white dove centered the table. Two three-branched candelabra were on either side of the rings. Mrs. Doug Marsh, Miss Anne Wissman and Mrs. Leo Blackman served wedding cake and punch.

After the church reception, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Sickal entertained the couple and the wedding party at their home, 808 Sikes.

The couple left on a cruise to the Bahama Islands. For travel, the new Mrs. Taylor wore a two piece suit with long lace sleeves and brown accessories. They will be living at 816 Gulf. Taylor will be a senior at Southeast Missouri State

Perhaps the most important spiritual quality that should be expressed toward life is the love of God. When we are aware of His love and make a sincere effort to pour forth this love to all persons and all situations, we have the sure cure for any problem. Let us build in a feeling of God's love as we walk through our days to meet only love and understanding.

Series Orders Start Friday

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals announced Monday that orders for World Series tickets will be accepted starting Friday Sept. 20, and that a new method will be used to give more fans a chance.

Requests must not be postmarked before Friday. Orders will be accepted for two tickets to the four games scheduled in St. Louis. Fans may ask for two tickets to games one and seven, or games two and six. Last year, orders were accepted only for all three games scheduled in St. Louis.

A Cardinals spokesman said there were less than 20,000 tickets available last year and 200,000 requests.

A check for $33 must accompany each order and cashier's or personal checks will be accepted. The $33 covers two seats for two games. There is a $11 handling charge. Checks should be made payable to St. Louis Cardinals, Agent.

The requests should be addressed to: World Series Tickets, P.O. Box 8888, St. Louis, 63102. A large self-addressed stamped envelope should be included. The method of sale for 4,000 bleacher seats and standing room will be announced later.

The Series started Wednesday Oct. 2 in St. Louis. The second game is scheduled the next day. The next three games will be

MU Frosh Cager Dies

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A freshman basketball player at the University of Missouri-Columbia collapsed and died of an unusual type of heart seizure while shooting baskets in a gymnasium Monday afternoon.

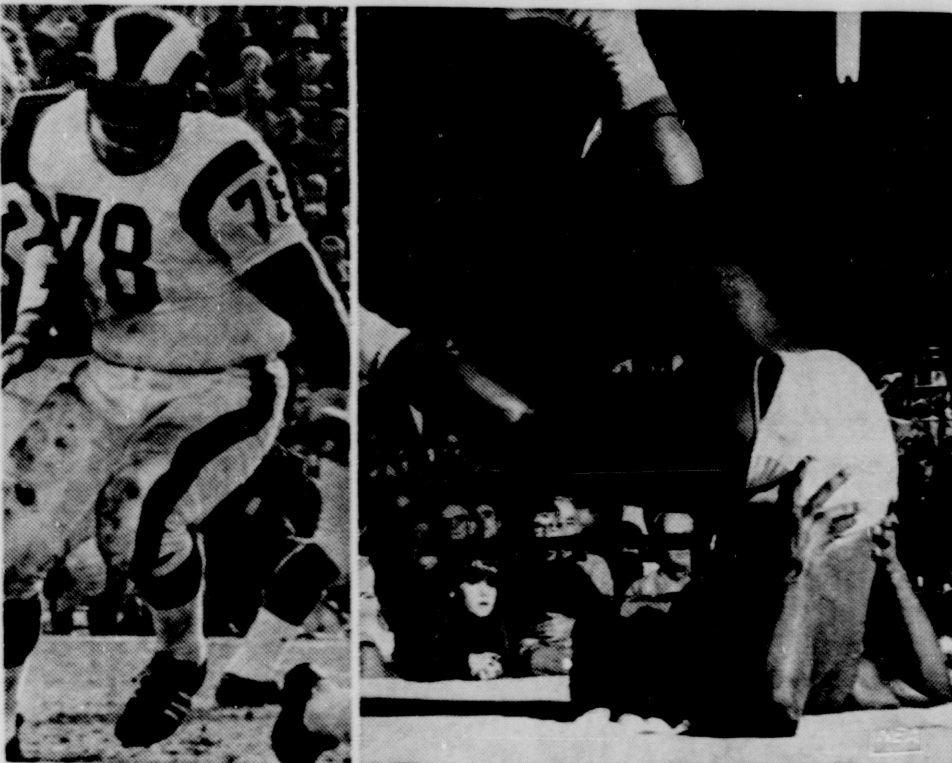

He was Sanford Boyd, 6 feet 2, of St. Louis, who had been recruited by Norman Stewart, MU basketball coach. Boyd had been a three-year letterman at McKinley High School in St. Louis and was president of the student council.

Dr. Richard Johnson, coroner, said an autopsy disclosed that Boyd died of an unusual seizure which sometimes hits young people for no apparent reason. He said there was no damage to the heart and Boyd was in excellent physical condition.

The coroner said the seizure may or may not be brought on by exertion and in this case it apparently was not.

Boyd arrived at the campus Sunday for the new students' orientation program. He visited Stewart's office about 4 p.m. Monday, then went to a junior high school gym with a companion to shoot baskets. The field house was set up for registration of students.

The two youths had a short workout and Boyd complained of feeling a little dizzy, then he collapsed.

94-Yard Runback, Tight Ram Defense Stop Big Red

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ron Smith came to the Los Angeles Rams about the same way he went through the St. Louis Cardinals' defense—long and roundabout.

Both trips paid off handsomely as Smith's 94-yard kickoff return sparked them to a 24-13 victory over the Cardinals Monday night in a National Football League game.

The Rams' head coach George Allen, sipped milk and outlined Smith's journey to the club.

"We actually got him for big Ben Wilson," Allen explained. "You remember big Ben? We traded Wilson to Vince Lombardi (Green Bay Packers general manager) and he gave me a second round draft choice. We turned around and gave that to Atlanta for Smith, who is a proven ball player. I remembered him because I signed him for the (Chicago) Bears in 1965 before he went to Atlanta."

So the fourth-year man from Wisconsin repaid Allen with the touchdown run to open the second half and pushed the Rams into a 17-3 lead.

"Any time I get the ball," Smith said, "I second interception."

The Rams handed out three game balls, but Meador failed to get one. They went to Smith, to I don't think I was even touched. They told me on the bench I stiff-armed (Jim) Lundy.

Cross got his for stopping end Dave Williams throughout the game. Allen said that was a key. The Rams figured they had to stop Williams.

Lundy got his for batting down four Hart passes. And if Lundy didn't knock down the ball, the defensive line knocked down Hart. When Hart did have time to throw, he seldom had anyone open.

Hart completed 17 of 40 passes but only one series led to a touchdown. That came in the fourth quarter when the Rams had already scored all their points.

Hart said the Rams' Fearsome Foursome might better be called the "Tallsome Foursome."

And Hart didn't think the Rams' "Stop Williams" strategy had that much to do with the outcome.

Houston, Georgia Crash Into Elite Football Ranks

Houston and Georgia cracked into the rankings as a weekend of only limited warfare produced a thorough shakeup in The Associated Press' major college football poll.

The top three—Purdue, Southern California and Notre Dame—were about the only teams to escape the madcap shuffle from the preseason rankings.

Purdue attracted 14 of the 30 first-place votes and 584 points, while Southern Cal had eight and 535 and Notre Dame two and 485.

Houston, unmentioned in the preseason poll, leaped all the way to 11th after humiliating Tulane 54-7, and Georgia took over the No. 18 spot after a 17-17 tie with Tennessee that dropped the Vols from ninth to 12th.

Nebraska, only other ranked team in action over the weekend, remained 14th after a 13-10 last-minute victory over Wyoming.

Texas moved up a spot to fourth, trading place with Oklahoma, while Florida climbed a notch to sixth and Alabama moved from 10th to seventh.

Oregon State dropped from sixth to eighth, Ohio State moved from 11th to ninth and Penn State fell two spots to 10th to round out the top 10.

Texas A&M slipped from 12th to 13th, Indiana from 13th to 15th, Minnesota from 15th into a tie with UCLA for 16th, Miami jumped from 20th to 19th and Louisiana State, dropped from 18th to 20th.

Arizona State, 17th in the preseason poll, and Syracuse, 19th, vanished from the ratings although neither has played a game yet.

Birds to Have Say In Runner-up Battle Two Umps Blame Firing On Efforts to Form Union

The St. Louis Cardinals may be building a National League dynasty but it looks more like a dictatorship.

Not content with having run away with their second straight pennant, the Cards are about to have their say in determining the rest of the standings, as well.

They move into San Francisco tonight for a three-game series with the runner-up Giants, who lead third-place Cincinnati by two games after Monday's 3-4 victory over the Reds. Chicago is 3 1/2 games behind the Giants and Atlanta is five back.

Then it's on to Los Angeles for three with the Dodgers, who are battling Houston and New York for eighth place. After that it's back home for two games with seventh-place Philadelphia, which is trying to catch Pittsburgh, and three with Houston.

In Monday night action, Los Angeles tripped Atlanta 6-0 and Pittsburgh trounced Philadelphia 6-1. St. Louis, Chicago, Houston and New York were not scheduled.

In the American League, Detroit clinched a tie for the pennant by routing the New York Yankees 9-1, Baltimore clobbered Boston 8-1 and Minnesota edged California 4-3. Cleveland, Oakland, the Chicago White Sox and Washington were idle.

"The way it's planned, the pitchers will go in their regular rotation for the remaining 11 games—Bob Gibson, Ray Washburn, Nelson Briles and Steve Carlton," Red Schoendienst, manager of the Cardinals, said Monday night.

That means Gibson will work every fifth day, which will bring him right up to Oct. 2 and the much-awaited confrontation with Detroit's Denny McLain in the World Series opener.

"I'll leave it up to Gibson if he wants to sit out one start," Schoendienst added, "and I may pitch all the relievers in the last game. I'll also get some of the regulars out for a few days. But the last four games I'll play them all."

Willie McCovey drove in four runs in San Francisco's victory over Cincinnati, which prevented the Reds from moving into a virtual tie for second place.

McCovey's two-run double highlighted a five-run rally in the seventh inning that gave rookie reliever Rich Robertson his first major league victory.

The slim crowd of 2,361, smallest in the Giants' San Francisco history, saw Willie Mays engage in a verbal altercation with two Air Force sergeants in the stands.

Mays had just made a running catch and was approaching the dugout in the middle of the fourth inning when he went after the two men. He was intercepted by

Bobby Bonds and Manager Herman Franks and the sergeants were ejected from the park.

"All I said was, 'Nice catch; for a $100,000 bum you're earning your money,'" explained Sgt. Jay East of the Alameda Air Station.

Bill Singer scattered nine hits and his two-run double capped a five-run uprising in the sixth inning that broke a scoreless tie with Atlanta as the Dodgers won for the 11th time in 13 games.

Jim Lefebvre singled in the first run, Len Gabrielson doubled home the second and the third scored on an error by Felix Millan.

Series Orders Start Friday

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals announced Monday that orders for World Series tickets will be accepted starting Friday, Sept. 28, and that a new method will be used to give more fans a chance.

Requests must not be postmarked before Friday. Orders will be accepted for two tickets for two of the four games scheduled in St. Louis. Fans may ask for two tickets to games one and seven, or games two and six. Last year, orders were accepted only for all three games scheduled in St. Louis.

A Cardinals spokesman said there were less than 20,000 tickets available last year and 200,000 requests.

A check for $33 must accompany each order and cashier's or personal checks will be accepted. The $33 covers two seats for two games. There is a $1 handling charge. Checks should be made payable to St. Louis Cardinals, Agent.

The requests should be addressed to: World Series Tickets, P.O. Box 8888, St. Louis, 63102. A large self-addressed stamped envelope should be included. The method of sale for 4,000 bleacher seats and standing room will be announced later.

The Series started Wednesday Oct. 2 in St. Louis. The second game is scheduled the next day. The next three games will be

MU Frosh Cager Dies

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A freshman basketball player at the University of Missouri-Columbia collapsed and died of an unusual type of heart seizure while shooting baskets in a gymnasium Monday afternoon.

He was Sanford Boyd, 6 feet 2, of St. Louis, who had been recruited by Norman Stewart, MU basketball coach. Boyd had been a three-year letterman at McKinley High School in St. Louis and was president of the student council.

Dr. Richard Johnson, coroner, said an autopsy disclosed that Boyd died of an unusual seizure which sometimes hits young people for no apparent reason. He said there was no damage to the heart and Boyd was in excellent physical condition.

The coroner said the seizure may or may not be brought on by exertion and in this case it apparently was not.

Boyd arrived at the campus Sunday for the new students' orientation program. He visited Stewart's office about 4 p.m. Monday, then went to a junior high school gym with a companion to shoot baskets. The field house was set up for registration of students.

The two youths had a short workout and Boyd complained of feeling a little dizzy, then he collapsed.

94-Yard Runback, Tight Ram Defense Stop Big Red

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ron Smith came to the Los Angeles Rams about the same way he went through the St. Louis Cardinals' defense—long and roundabout.

Both trips paid off handsomely as Smith's 94-yard kickoff return sparked them to a 24-13 victory over the Cardinals Monday night in a National Football League game.

The Rams' head coach George Allen, sipped milk and outlined Smith's journey to the club.

"We actually got him for big Ben Wilson," Allen explained. "You remember big Ben? We traded Wilson to Vince Lombardi (Green Bay Packers general manager) and he gave me a second round draft choice. We turned around and gave that to Atlanta for Smith, who is a proven ball player. I remembered him because I signed him for the (Chicago) Bears in 1965 before he went to Atlanta."

So the fourth-year man from Wisconsin repaid Allen with the touchdown run to open the second half and pushed the Rams into a 17-3 lead.

"Any time I get the ball," the freckle-faced Smith said, "I know I can go all the way. It was a squib kick and I knew I would have to do a lot of maneuvering. I don't think I was even touched. They told me on the bench I stiff-armed (Jim) Bakken and he blocked out another guy."

"I thought the turning point was the kickoff return," Allen was saying. "That was the big play because the score was 10-3 at the time."

Free safety Ed Meador earlier supplied a couple of other turning points as he intercepted two Jim Hart passes. One set up the Rams' first touchdown and the second killed a Cardinal scoring drive.

Hart fired a third-down pass from his 25 for tight end Jackie Smith with about six minutes left in the first period. Meador picked it off and three plays later Roman Gabriel bootlegged around right end for a 7-0 lead.

The Cardinals managed a drive midway through the second quarter and settled for a Bakken field goal. The Rams got that back quickly on a Bruce Gossett field goal. Then with 18 seconds left in the half and the Cards threatening from the Rams' 25, Meador collared his second interception.

The Rams handed out three game balls, but Meador failed to get one. They went to Smith, to defensive halfback Irv Cross, and to defensive lineman Lamar Lundy.

Cross got his for stopping end Dave Williams throughout the game. Allen said that was a key. The Rams figured they had to stop Williams.

Lundy got his for batting down four Hart passes. And if Lundy didn't knock down the ball, the defensive line knocked down Hart. When Hart did have time to throw, he seldom had anyone open.

Hart completed 17 of 40 passes but only one series led to a touchdown. That came in the fourth quarter when the Rams had already scored all their points.

Hart said the Rams' Fearsome Foursome might better be called the "Tallsome Foursome."

And Hart didn't think the Rams' "Stop Williams" strategy had that much to do with the outcome.

Houston, Georgia Crash Into Elite Football Ranks

Houston and Georgia cracked into the rankings as a weekend of only limited warfare produced a thorough shakeup in The Associated Press' major college football poll.

The top three—Purdue, Southern California and Notre Dame—were about the only teams to escape the madcap shuffle from the preseason rankings.

Purdue attracted 14 of the 30 first-place votes and 584 points, while Southern Cal had eight and 536 and Notre Dame two and 488.

Houston, unmentioned in the preseason poll, leaped all the way to 11th after humiliating Tulane 54-7, and Georgia took over the No. 18 spot after a 17-17 tie with Tennessee that dropped the Vols from ninth to 12th.

Nebraska, only other ranked team in action over the weekend, remained 14th after a 13-10 last-minute victory over Wyoming.

Texas moved up a spot to fourth, trading place with Oklahoma, while Florida climbed a notch to sixth and Alabama moved from 10th to seventh.

Oregon State dropped from sixth to eighth, Ohio State moved from 11th to ninth and Penn State fell two spots to 10th to round out the top 10.

Texas A&M slipped from 12th to 13th, Indiana from 13th to 15th, Minnesota from 15th into a tie with UCLA for 16th, Miami jumped from 20th to 19th and Louisiana State, dropped from 18th to 20th.

Arizona State, 17th in the preseason poll, and Syracuse, 19th, vanished from the ratings although neither has played a game yet.

Birds to Have Say In Runner-up Battle

The St. Louis Cardinals may be building a National League dynasty but it looks more like a dictatorship.

Not content with having run away with their second straight pennant, the Cards are about to have their say in determining the rest of the standings, as well.

They move into San Francisco tonight for a three-game series with the runner-up Giants, who lead third-place Cincinnati by two games after Monday's 8-4 victory over the Reds. Chicago is 3 1/2 games behind the Giants and Atlanta is five back.

Then it's on to Los Angeles for three with the Dodgers, who are battling Houston and New York for eighth place. After that it's back home for two games with seventh-place Philadelphia, which is trying to catch Pittsburgh, and three with Houston.

In Monday night action, Los Angeles tripped Atlanta 5-4 and Pittsburgh trounced Philadelphia 6-1. St. Louis, Chicago, Houston and New York were not scheduled.

In the American League, Detroit clinched a tie for the pennant by routing the New York Yankees 9-1. Baltimore clobbered Boston 8-1 and Minnesota edged California 4-3. Cleveland, Oakland, the Chicago White Sox and Washington were idle.

"The way it's planned, the pitchers will go in their regular rotation for the remaining 11 games—Bob Gibson, Ray Washburn, Nelson Briles and Steve Carlton," Red Schoendienst, manager of the Cardinals, said Monday night.

That means Gibson will work every fifth day, which will bring him right up to Oct. 2 and the much-awaited confrontation with Detroit's Denny McLain in the World Series opener.

"I'll leave it up to Gibson if he wants to sit out one start," Schoendienst added, "and I may pitch all the relievers in the last game. I'll also get some of the regulars out for a few days. But the last four games I'll play them all."

Willie McCovey drove in four runs in San Francisco's victory over Cincinnati, which prevented the Reds from moving into a virtual tie for second place.

McCovey's two-run double highlighted a five-run rally in the seventh inning that gave rookie reliever Rich Robertson his first major league victory.

The slim crowd of 2,361, smallest in the Giants' San Francisco history, saw Willie Mays engage in a verbal altercation with two Air Force sergeants in the stands.

Mays had just made a running catch and was approaching the dugout in the middle of the fourth inning when he went after the two men. He was intercepted by

Bobby Bonds and Manager Herman Franks and the sergeants were ejected from the park.

"All I said was, 'Nice catch! For a $100,000 bum you're earning your money,'" explained SSgt. Jay Eash of the Alameda Air Station.

Bill Singer scattered nine hits and his two-run double capped a five-run uprising in the sixth inning that broke a scoreless tie with Atlanta as the Dodgers won for the 14th time in 13 games. Jim Lefebvre singled in the first run, Len Gabrielson doubled home the second and the third scored on an error by Felix Millan.

League officials confirmed the firing but denied that union activity was the cause.

"Salerno met with National League umpires Thursday night," Valentine snorted. "Friday, the cards were mailed to every American League umpire. Today (Monday) we were fired."

"... Eighteen years in this profession ... you don't go overnight," he said.

telephone calls, seven minutes apart, notified Salerno that he would receive 10 days severance pay and Valentine 30 days.

They said National League umpires, who "have been organized for several years," get from $3,000 to $7,750 a year more than AL umpires and "an ahead of us in ever department."

Salary scales were not disclosed.

They declined to speculate on what course they and the attorneys would take to fight the discharges.

It's Not Little Red Schoolhouse

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Now that the schoolhouse and classroom are taking on a new look from kindergarten to college, architects are hoping that vocational-technical schools will be upgraded in the process.

Clint Mochon of Milwaukee well-known architect in school circles points out that students in these schools have been inhibited by their physical environment, underscoring a fact he has already suspected, that he is a second class student.

The art of architecture can sweep away these visual blocks to enthusiastic acceptance of occupational training that is immensely important to the nation and future industry, he explained at a conference on occupational training.

It would be important, he says, to stress campuslike atmosphere with lawns, shrubbery, walks. A small park should be reserved with greenery and benches, even if school space must go underground.

The ideal technical school, he says, should be housed in a group of two buildings that are shaped and fluted to give texture and shadows, each one two stories high with its own classrooms and equipment. He visualizes them decorated with murals of ceramic tiles or concrete. Windows can be eliminated to save expense, indoor lighting and colors can be substituted for outdoor atmosphere.

Mochon's studies of vocational students reactions to interior design shows that they respect carpeting and well-designed furniture, and even converse in lower tones away from the chill atmosphere of the "institutional building look."

A step further would be the ideal, in Mochon's opinion. He would like to see a combination of liberal arts and technical arts in a single structure or complex as the best insurance against loss of pride and interest. "This would assure the technical school student the same prestige accorded a student who studies these courses in a community college," he explains.

New developments in elementary schools stress open area planning. A new school wing designed by Mochon's firm for primary students is 100 ft. by 100 ft. is an all-carpeted acoustically tiled area that is divided into three free-form classrooms of varying sizes — square, triangular, round.

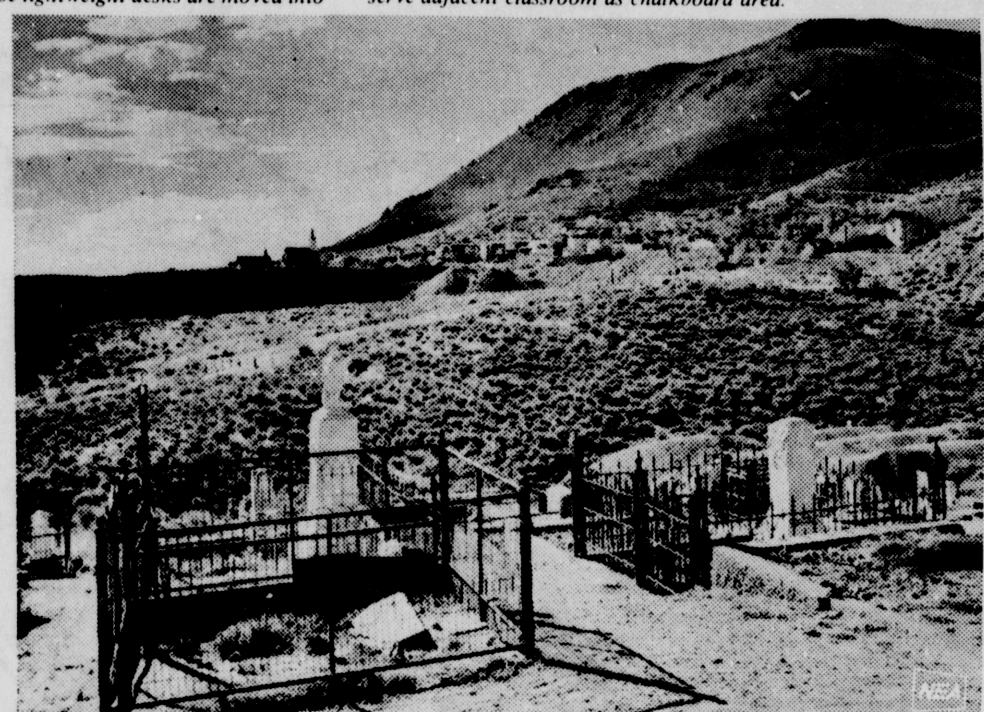

Everything is movable — chairs, cabinets, chalk boards, coat closets. Three of the eight classrooms that eventually will occupy the space are separated only by cabinets.

FREE FORM CLASSROOMS. ... At Prairie View Elementary School at North Prairie Wis., these lightweight desks are moved into circles, straight, lines, small or large groups. Back of storage cabinets serve adjacent classroom as chalkboard area.

Devotees of western history agree that Virginia City, Nev., is the most celebrated and lively ghost town in the world. Founded in 1859 on the site of the Comstock Lode, the most spectacular gold and silver discovery in the United States, the town had a population of 30,000 persons by 1862. After producing nearly $750 million worth of valuable metal, the mines petered out and the city became a ghost town. Today only 500 persons live in Virginia City, but more than 500,000 tourists annually visit the authentic old town located between Reno and Carson City.

Virginia City

Set at a respectable distance north of town, the old cemetery reflects the general atmosphere of the ghost town. Old gravesites, some with faded wooden markers, are steeped in history of a bygone era. It was in Virginia City, in 1863, that Samuel Clemens became Mark Twain while reporting for the Territorial Enterprise, which is still being published.

Wallpaper Can Set the Pace

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a trend to fixing up old houses — city brownstones, farmhouses, or Victorian homes.

If you are decorating one, the project may be simplified by taking a tour of old houses or visiting actual restorations in many areas of the United States.

Zelina Brunschwig, well-known authority on historic textiles, says they inspire many different style ideas.

She has just reproduced the fabrics and wallcoverings used throughout the Liberty Hall restoration in Kenansville, North Carolina, ancestral plantation built in 1800, and in 1964 donated to the county.

She says wallpaper and fabrics set the pace of the house. They also disguise such problems as too-high or too-low ceilings. Wall borders may be used as cornice moldings to create architectural interest inexpensively when original moldings have been removed. Wallpaper panels can define areas in a room and substitute the effect of original panelling.

Design motif from the 18th and 19th centuries include stripes, geometrics, birds, butterflies, pastoral scenes, Paisleys, toiles, damasks, checks and even Chinese figures.

Bright colors make small dark rooms seem larger. Some marvelous combinations available are brown and beige, yellow and orange on white, peach on beige, pink on pale green, orange and pine on cream, lacquer and black, blue and yellow on white, pink and orange on orange.

In many old houses rooms surround the central hall, Mrs. Brunschwig says. The color scheme for the entire house can be taken from the shades of the wallpaper or rug used in the hall.

In the entrance hall of the Kenan house she used a parrot motif, blue green and red wallpaper on a light blue ground. The eighteenth century English needlepoint carpet was placed in a gentlemen's bedroom. Its tones of beige, brown, turquoise matched a brown on white dust ruffle and canopy cover.

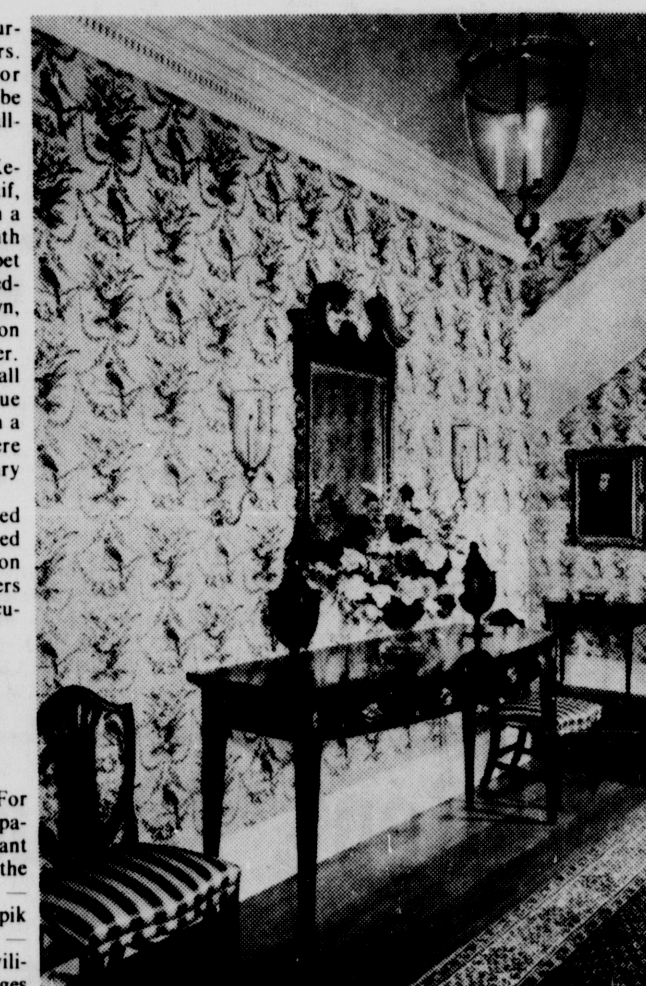

Motif and colors in upstairs hall curtains — red, orange and blue flowers, leaves and butterflies on a beige trellis background — were taken from an early 19th century hatbox of flowers.

The formal dining room used during cold months was papered with a lacquer red and blue on cream print of birds and flowers inspired by an 18th century document.

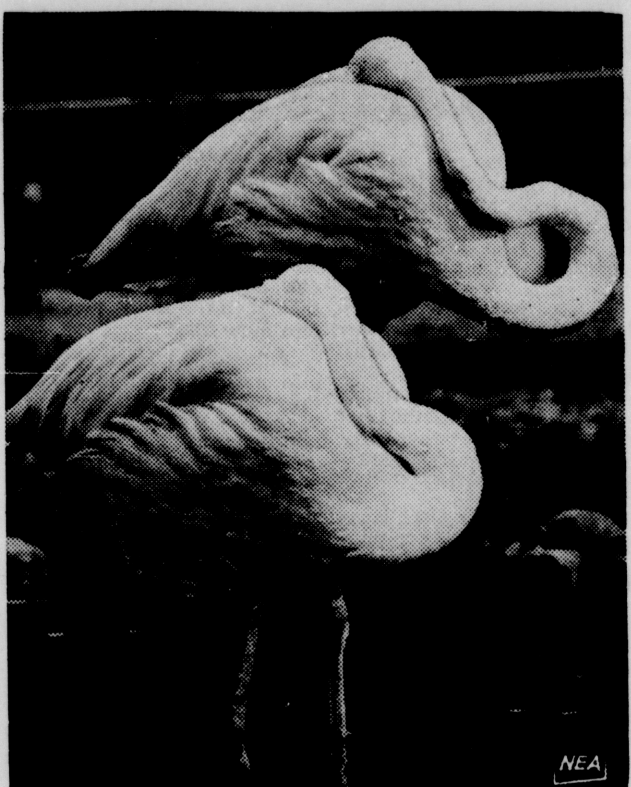

Girl To Study Primitives

PORT MORESBY (AP) — For the next five years a young Japanese woman will be the constant daily companion of one of the world's most primitive people — the Sissimins of the West Sepik District of New Guinea — separated from any form of civilization by sheer limestone ridges which rise in some places to 6,000 feet.

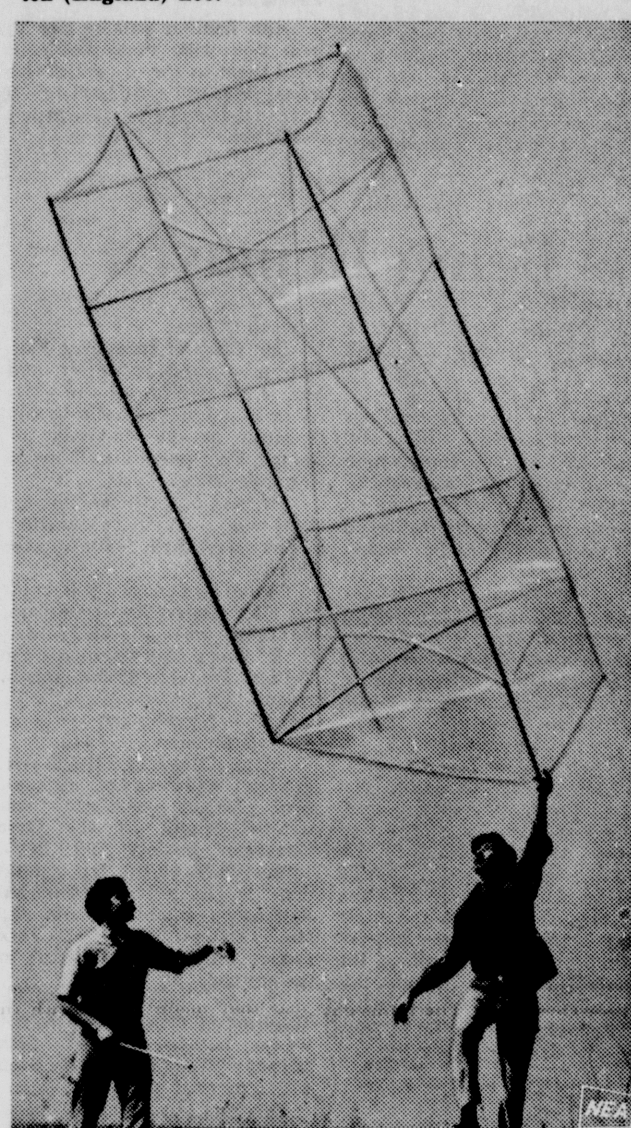

She is Miss Sachiko Hatanaka, a Japanese anthropologist doing research for a Ph.D. thesis through the University of Tokyo.

WALLPAPER RESTORES BEAUTY — Textile authority Zelina Brunschwig covered walls of entrance hall in Parrot paper, a blue, green and red pattern on blue ground inspired by an 18th century document. The paper sets the mood for the rest of Liberty Hall, the ancestral home of the Kenan family of North Carolina, restored by interior designer John E. Winters.

UNDER COVER, these flamingos hide their heads and stand on one foot while catching 40 winks at the Chessington (England) Zoo.

GO FLY A KITE. And a group of engineering and art students from the University of Southern California did just that recently. About 2,000 participants and spectators celebrated "The Day of the Kite" at Santa Barbara, Calif., building and flying kites of all sizes and shapes. Here, Mike Walker and Carlos Alvarez help launch a huge box kite made of clear plastic.

It's Not Little Red Schoolhouse

NEW YORK (AP) — Now that the schoolhouse and classroom are taking on a new look from kindergarten to college, architects are hoping that vocational-technical schools will be upgraded in the process.

Clint Mochon of Milwaukee well-known architect in school circles points out that students in these schools have been inhibited by their physical environment, underscoring a fact he has already suspected, that he is a second class student.

The art of architecture can sweep away these visual blocks to enthusiastic acceptance of occupational training that is immensely important to the nation and future industry, he explained at a conference on occupational training.

It would be important, he says, to stress campuslike atmosphere with lawns, shrubbery, walks. A small park should be reserved with greenery and benches, even if school space must go underground.

The ideal technical school, he says, should be housed in a group of two buildings that are shaped and fluted to give texture and shadows, each one two stories high with its own classrooms and equipment. He visualizes them decorated with murals of ceramic tiles or concrete. Windows can be eliminated to save expense, indoor lighting and colors can be substituted for outdoor atmosphere.

Mochon's studies of vocational students' reactions to interior design shows that they respect carpeting and well-designed furniture, and even converse in lower tones away from the chill atmosphere of the "institutional building look."

A step further would be the ideal, in Mochon's opinion. He would like to see a combination of liberal arts and technical arts in a single structure or complex as the best insurance against loss of pride and interest. "This would assure the technical school student the same prestige accorded a student who studies these courses in a community college," he explains.

New developments in elementary schools stress open area planning. A new school wing designed by Mochon's firm for primary students is 100 ft. by 100 ft. is an all-carpeted acoustically tiled area that is divided into three free-form classrooms of varying sizes — square, triangular, round.

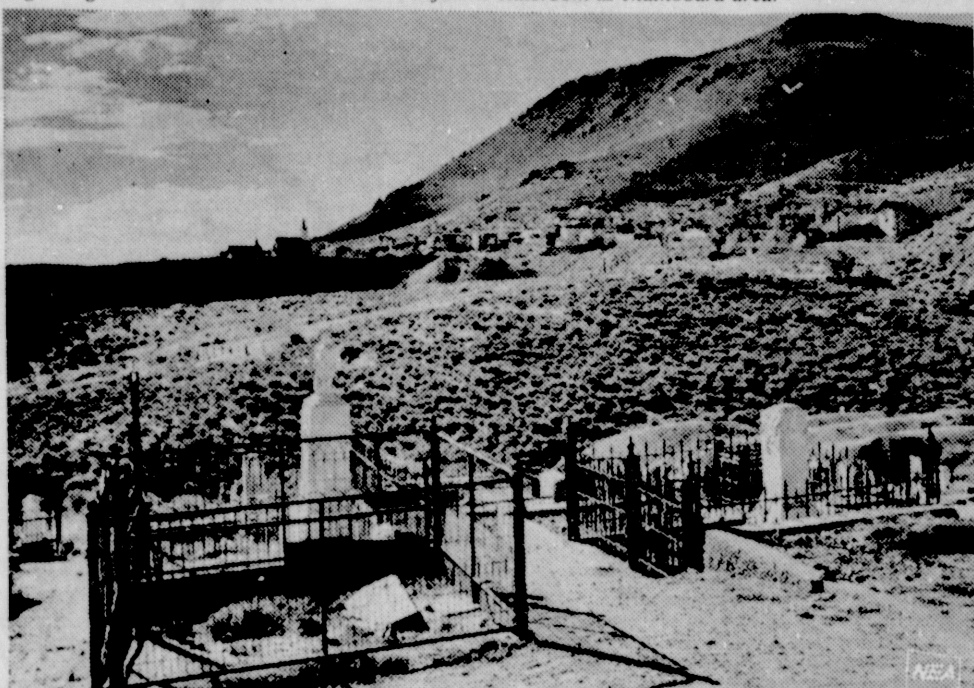

Everything is movable — chairs, cabinets, chalk boards, coat closets. Three of the eight classrooms that eventually will occupy the space are separated only by cabinets.

FREE FORM CLASSROOMS. At Prairie View Elementary School at North Prairie Wis., these lightweight desks are moved into circles, straight, lines, small or large groups. Back of storage cabinets serve adjacent classroom as chalkboard area.

Devotees of western history agree that Virginia City, Nev., is the most celebrated and lively ghost town in the world. Founded in 1859 on the site of the Comstock Lode, the most spectacular gold and silver discovery in the United States, the town had a population of 30,000 persons by 1862. After producing nearly $750 million worth of valuable metal, the mines petered out and the city became a ghost town. Today only 500 persons live in Virginia City, but more than 500,000 tourists annually visit the authentic old town located between Reno and Carson City.

Set at a respectable distance north of town, the old cemetery reflects the general atmosphere of the ghost town. Old gravesites, some with faded wooden markers, are steeped in history of a bygone era. It was in Virginia City, in 1863, that Samuel Clemens became Mark Twain while reporting for the Territorial Enterprise, which is still being published.

GO FLY A KITE. And a group of engineering and art students from the University of Southern California did just that recently. About 2,000 participants and spectators celebrated "The Day of the Kite" at Santa Barbara, Calif., building and flying kites of all sizes and shapes. Here, Mike Walker and Carlos Alvarez help launch a huge box kite made of clear plastic.

AT THE READY. A soldier from Company B, 2d Battalion, 47th Infantry, 9th Infantry Division, stands poised with his M-60 machinegun. His unit was located south of the "Y" Bridge, a vital link into Saigon, on the Kinh Doi Canal.

QUILT-MATES. Favorite dorm warmers of the year are quilted cotton robes, seen here in long and short versions. At left, a floor-length style in a turquoise and lavender paisley print with a dashing tassel pull on the zip-up front. At right, a short study coat in a lustrous cotton satin print. Wallpaper Can Set the Pace

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a trend to fixing up old houses — city brownstones, farmhouses, or Victorian homes.

If you are decorating one, the project may be simplified by taking a tour of old houses or visiting actual restorations in many areas of the United States.

Zelina Brunschwig, well-known authority on historic textiles, says they inspire many different style ideas.

She has just reproduced the fabrics and wallcoverings used throughout the Liberty Hall restoration in Kenansville, North Carolina, ancestral plantation built in 1800, and in 1964 donated to the county.

She says wallpaper and fabrics set the pace of the house. They also disguise such problems as too-high or too-low ceilings. Wall borders may be used as cornice moldings to create architectural interest inexpensively when original moldings have been removed. Wallpaper panels can define areas in a room and substitute the effect of original panelling.

Design motif from the 18th and 19th centuries include stripes, geometrics, birds, butterflies, pastoral scenes, paisleys, toiles, damasks, checks and even Chinese figures.

Bright colors make small dark rooms seem larger. Some marvelous combinations available are brown and beige, yellow and orange on white, peach on beige, pink on pale green, orange and pine on cream, lacquer and black, blue and yellow on white, pink and orange on orange.

In many old houses rooms surround the central hall, Mrs. Brunschwig says. The color scheme for the entire house can be taken from the shades of the wallpaper or rug used in the hall.

In the entrance hall of the Kenan house she used a parrot motif, blue green and red wallpaper on a light blue ground. The eighteenth century English needlepoint carpet was placed in a gentlemen's bedroom. Its tones of beige, brown, turquoise matched a brown on white dust ruffle and canopy cover.

Motif and colors in upstairs hall curtains — red, orange and blue flowers, leaves and butterflies on a beige trellis background — were taken from an early 19th century hatbox of flowers.

The formal dining room used during cold months was papered with a lacquer red and blue on cream print of birds and flowers inspired by an 18th century document.

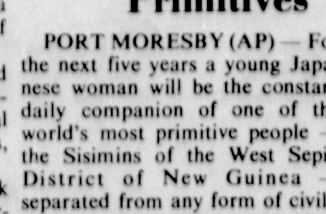

Girl To Study

Primitives

PORT MORESBY (AP) — For the next five years a young Japanese woman will be the constant daily companion of one of the world's most primitive people — the Sissimins of the West Sepik District of New Guinea — separated from any form of civilization by sheer limestone ridges which rise in some places to 6,000 feet.

She is Miss Sachiko Hatanaka, a Japanese anthropologist doing research for a Ph.D. thesis through the University of Tokyo.

WALLPAPER RESTORES BEAUTY — Textile authority Zelina Brunschwig covered walls of entrance hall in Parrot paper, a blue, green and red pattern on blue ground inspired by an 18th century document. The paper sets the mood for the rest of Liberty Hall, the ancestral home of the Kenan family of North Carolina, restored by interior designer John E. Winters.

Ann Landers

Disappointed in Girl Watching

Dear Ann Landers: Something has been bothering me and it is going to take a woman to answer this question. Will you try?

Why do some females appear in public with their hair rolled up in curlers? Don't they consider themselves on display when they go to the drug store, the bakery, the market, to the park, on the bus or what have you?

More and more I see women running around with metal and plastic junk attached to their heads. It is, in my opinion, an insult to the world at large. Such women are saying, "You are not important to me. I don't care how I look in your presence." Why do they do it? — MINOT, N. C., MALE

Dear Minot Male: Disrespect for others stems from a lack of self-respect. Women who appear in public in hair curlers (ditto short shorts, halters, barefoot, etc.) advertise the fact that they consider themselves slob and feel it is useless to present themselves as ladies.

Dear Ann Landers: We are a young couple just starting out. I am not working at present because we are expecting a baby in December. My husband is in the service.

My problem is that we cannot get credit. No one will give us credit because we have no credit references. How can we get credit references when nobody will give us credit? It is a vicious circle and we don't know what to do about it.

We have never gone bad on a debt and we have no bills other than the rent, utilities, telephone—like most other people. We have been turned down by at least 10 different places, including two banks. What do you suggest? — MRS. MERRY—GO—ROUND

Dear Merry: Get some character references from three or four people who know you well—a high school principal, a clergyman, the manager of a store where you have been shopping (for cash). If you are new in the city, write to people in your home town. If you and your husband can present some letters from individuals who will vouch for your integrity you should have no trouble getting credit.

Dear Ann Landers: Last year I got VD from the only boy I ever went with. He was 19 and I was 16. I had never even heard of VD and didn't know what was wrong with me. My girl friend noticed sores on my face and guessed. She advised me to go to the nearest hospital and ask for treatment right away. I took her advice and I am happy to say I am perfectly O.K. now. But something is bothering me. I had to give my right name. How secret are those records? Can any nurse or doctor see them? Can student nurses get into those files?

Some girls I know are going into nursing and I live in fear they will find out about me. Please rush your answer. —WORRIED.

Dear Worried: The only people who have access to those records are medical people who must refer to them for further treatment, should it be necessary. The chance of one of your friends learning of your past illness is extremely small. Forget it.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Washington Report

By Senator Symington

MISSOURI, FEDERAL GOVERNMENT WORKING TOGETHER—As example of the growing Federal-State local partnership in helping to meet problems in our State, following is a summary of some of the programs, loans and grants announced in a recent typical week:

Kansas City and St. Louis were among 26 cities designated to participate in a Small Business Administration program to stimulate minority-owned businesses in inner cities.

Missouri was named by the Labor Department to participate in its Work Incentive project and will receive $2,285,847 to provide training for 1,800 persons on welfare.

Poplar Bluff received a $265,000 Housing and Urban Development (HUD) grant for improvements in its water system.

Wagner Electric Corporation in St. Louis received an Army contract of $4.5 million for parts for artillery shells.

Missouri Southern College in Joplin received a loan of $1,348,000 from HUD for two new dormitories, one for men and one for women.

St. Louis received $60,000 from HUD for planning 1500 new low-rent homes.

The Labor Department approved Manpower Development and Training Act projects for Hannibal, St. Joseph, Chillicothe, Flat River, Sikeston and Kansas City.

The Office of Economic Opportunity approved $804,826 to the State of Missouri for 770 migrant and seasonal farm workers.

MERAMEC RIVER BASIN STUDY PLANNED—Findings in a joint study by the National Park Service and the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation of the potential of the Meramec River Basin are to be reported to the Secretary of the Interior in December, 1968.

Because it adjoins and is a part of the heavily populated region of Greater St. Louis, there is broad interest in this study. The Interior Department has assured that full consideration will be given to all recreation potential in both the Lower and upper portions of the Basin.

MISSOURI SPEAKING ENGAGEMENTS—This past week has been taken up by Foreign Relations Committee hearings on the Treaty of Non-proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, and gun control legislation debate on the Senate floor.

However, I was able to be in Missouri this past weekend for speaking engagements, including the annual meeting of the Mo-Ark Flood Control Association, the Big Brothers banquet in Kansas City, and dedication of the new airport in Clinton.

If You Were the Judge

Judge Wrestles with Equality of the Sexes

By Jack Strauss
LL.B.
Teena cut a wide swath among men. Weighing 200 and plenty she would have much preferred to cut them down, however, when the State Athletic Commission refused to grant her a wrestling license. Insisting that the refusal was due to discrimination and the mid-Victorian concept of womanhood possessed by the men on the board, Teena swayed her delicate frame into court and demanded that the license be issued to her.

"Under the law," she told the judge, "men can no longer treat women like dainty pieces of porcelain that belong home on the shelf. Now, what's good for the goose is good for the gander. The Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment says that men and women must be treated the same! If men can get a license to wrestle, so can women."

"You can't treat them the same," was the answer of the Athletic Commission, "because obviously, they are not the same. If they were, then we'd really have a problem."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you direct that Teena be given a license to wrestle?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! He held that the 14th Amendment does not require that all persons be treated alike; that a state may classify its citizens provided that the classification is not arbitrary and that all persons in the class are treated the same. The Constitution does not demand that things which are different in fact be treated as though they were the same, concluded the judge. Thus, despite the possible mid-Victorian attitude of the Athletic Commission, there does exist a reasonable difference between men and women to justify the Commission's refusal to give Teena a license to wrestle.

Ann Landers

Disappointed in Girl Watching

Dear Ann Landers: Something has been bothering me and it is going to take a woman to answer this question. Will you try?

Why do some females appear in public with their hair rolled up in curlers? Don't they consider themselves on display when they go to the drug store, the bakery, the market, to the park, on the bus or what have you?

More and more I see women running around with metal and plastic junk attached to their heads. It is, in my opinion, an insult to the world at large. Such women are saying, "You are not important to me. I don't care how I look in your presence." Why do they do it? -- MINOT, N. C. MALE

Dear Minot Male: Disrespect for others stems from a lack of self-respect. Women who appear in public in hair curlers (ditto short shorts, halters, barefoot, etc.) advertise the fact that they consider themselves slob and feel it is useless to present themselves as ladies.

Dear Ann Landers: We are a young couple just starting out. I am not working at present because we are expecting a baby in December. My husband is in the service.

My problem is that we cannot get credit. No one will give us credit because we have no credit references. How can we get credit references when nobody will give us credit? It is a vicious circle and we don't know what to do about it.

We have never gone bad on a debt and we have no bills other than the rent, utilities, telephone—like most other people. We have been turned down by at least 10 different places, including two banks. What do you suggest? -- MRS. MERRY—GO—ROUND

Dear Merry: Get some character references from three or four people who know you well—a high school principal, a clergyman, the manager of a store where you have been shopping (for cash). If you are new in the city, write to people in your home town. If you and your husband can present some letters from individuals who will vouch for your integrity you should have no trouble getting credit.

Dear Ann Landers: Last year I got VD from the only boy I ever went with. He was 19 and I was 16. I had never even heard of VD and didn't know what was wrong with me. My girl friend noticed sores on my face and guessed. She advised me to go to the nearest hospital and ask for treatment right away. I took her advice and I am happy to say I am perfectly O.K. now. But something is bothering me. I had to give my right name. How secret are those records? Can any nurse or doctor see them? Can student nurses get into those files?

Some girls I know are going into nursing and I live in fear they will find out about me. Please rush your answer. --WORRIED.

Dear Worried: The only people who have access to those records are medical people who must refer to them for further treatment, should it be necessary. The chance of one of your friends learning of your past illness is extremely small. Forget it.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Washington Report

By Senator Symington

MISSOURI, FEDERAL GOVERNMENT WORKING TOGETHER—As example of the growing Federal-State local partnership in helping to meet problems in our State, following is a summary of some of the programs, loans and grants announced in a recent typical week:

Kansas City and St. Louis were among 26 cities designated to participate in a Small Business Administration program to stimulate minority-owned businesses in inner cities. Missouri was named by the Labor Department to participate in its Work Incentive project and will receive $2,285,847 to provide training for 1,800 persons on welfare.

Poplar Bluff received a $265,000 Housing and Urban Development (HUD) grant for improvements in its water system.

Wagner Electric Corporation in St. Louis received an Army contract of $4.5 million for parts for artillery shells.

Missouri Southern College in Joplin received a loan of $1,348,000 from HUD for two new dormitories, one for men and one for women.

St. Louis received $60,000 from HUD for planning 1500 new low-rent homes.

The Labor Department approved Manpower Development and Training Act projects for Hannibal, St. Joseph, Chillicothe, Flat River, Sikeston and Kansas City.

The Office of Economic Opportunity approved $804,826 to the State of Missouri for 770 migrant and seasonal farm workers.

MERAMEC RIVER BASIN STUDY PLANNED—Findings in the joint study by the National Park Service and the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation of the national recreation area potential of the Meramec River Basin are to be reported to the Secretary of the Interior in December, 1968.

Because it adjoins and is a part of the heavily populated region of Greater St. Louis, there is broad interest in this study. The Interior Department has assured that full consideration will be given to all recreation potential in both the Lower and upper portions of the Basin.

MISSOURI SPEAKING ENGAGEMENTS—This past week has been taken up by Foreign Relations Committee hearings on the Treaty of Non-proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, and gun control legislation debate on the Senate floor.

PRAYER: Lord, help us appreciate Thy love and care for us. May we, like the palmist, experience in our lives Thy love so that we can pray with confidence and put undoubting trust in Thee. We ask these things in the name of Jesus Christ, our Savior. Amen.
